

Belief [Rev. 20180625]

By J — Latest revision: <http://allis.foundation/Belief.pdf>

In general, nothing hurts a cause more than going full French Revolution. ^{*1}

I've been talking, recently, about how we all interact with symbols. Some of the world's most powerful symbols are printed on pieces of paper in your wallet. Really, these only mean anything because we agree to believe that they do! Yet how do you dismiss a belief that is so powerful and widespread? Scientists are right to point out that there's a big element of belief in astrology. But isn't their belief that it is 'just a belief' also just a belief! ^{*2}

There is a need for the evil, with out the evil, there would be no reason to be good. Put another way, there is no growth with out pain, have you not heard a child crying because he or she hurts. They hurt because they are growing. There can be no growth be it spiritual or physical without pain. Mentally, spiritually or physically when we are in the most pain is when we grow the most. If everything was goodness, there would be no reason or path for personal growth. The use of alcohol or drugs to kill the emotional pain in life is the spirit refusing to grow and to learn. ^{*3}

Useful data is that data that we can use in our calculations and what cannot be reduced to data is simply dismissed and in practical terms it "does not exist". And here starts the danger. While the calculator is inert, looking at the world with the calculator demands extracting data in numerical form: it reveals the world in numerical form. The danger of this outlook consists in this reduction which is necessary to activate the calculator but it is incapable of describing reality in its complex relationships and infinite features. When data (numerical or information based) assumes the quality of a fact then further calculations are assumed also to be a fact. ^{*4}

Spanish Yoga

Imagine... It's 1492, and we're on board a Spanish Galleon, sailing in the sun brightened ocean.

A lookout spots land ahead, and yells to his captain with excitement. We picture Christopher Columbus, observing the land through a telescope. The navigator approaches him with a map, pointing to land with the name of India.

The anchor is dropped, and small boats are dispatched to inquire. The Spaniards reach the beach, run to the sand, and cheer with joyous accomplishment. But their celebrations are interrupted by the sight of a lone man, standing on one leg.

In what appears to be an illusion, he is perfectly still like a statue, balancing with a pole. His curled leg is bent above his waistline, resting on his belly. His free arm in a prayer position, centered on his chest, as if pressed against an invisible hand.

The man is perfectly still, ignoring the spaniards, who are becoming curious about him. They gather around him, and start to laugh about his stretching prowess. Some are imitating him, though its clear their bodies are in no condition to match his pose.

When one of them falls over attempting to mimic him, the others burst out laughing. This causes the Indian man to open his eyes, and smile upon the visitors. Without actually doing so out loud, he appears to them to be smiling at their antics. He notices they're stretching "beginners."

Columbus attempts to speak to him, and reason with his intellect using logic.

But the Indian man doesn't admit to understand his language, nor his map. He simply points to India, and nods. Then one of the men elbows Columbus, and shares with him an idea.

All the Indian man can discern from observing the conversation, is the Spaniards making gestures depicting "stretching," "making knots," "uncomfortable faces," "screaming agony."

The Spaniards having learned torture from their occupiers, muslim invaders for several centuries.

They "invite" the Indian man to come aboard with them, but he doesn't want to move. Columbus orders the men to capture the posing man, taking him back on board their ship. On board, the men walk the man into the belly of the ship, to a room full of unpleasant inquisition implements.

As the men become excited to torture him, one senses their anticipation to indulge in their guilty pleasures. One of the men opens a large book containing records of previous tortured souls, with detailed drawings and logs of their activities.

The indian man, however, isn't discouraged, on the contrary, he's curious, and touches the nearest "stretcher." The spaniards turn and look at each other, then "jump" the indian man, to attach him to their first appliance.

We see a quick montage of edits, showing torturers turning, pulling, grabbing, making menacing grunts and faces. From a distance, the ship floats in the water as the sun sets into night, and all we hear is silence from the Indian man, as the Spaniards exhaust themselves from inflicting pain.

The Spaniards are heard taking turns to apply pain and displeasure, and becoming angrier and more powerful the more pain they inflict on the man. More “cracking,” “twisting,” “bending,” “stretching,” “grunting,” and “creaking” noises are heard.

Finally, as the sun is about to appear... A snap, loud gasping orgasm of pleasure “Aaaawwww...” is heard clearly. Then a single boat is dispatched back to the beach, which quickly returns to the ship. Its sails are raised and the anchor is lifted.

The Spaniards are sailing away from India. On board the navigator hands Columbus the map, and asks “Where are we going?”

The sailors are exhausted, and frightened, they’re weak and white as if having seen a ghost.

Columbus’s hand is trembling, he’s acting like a man who’s lost his power against God’s will, scared of his judgment. Columbus crosses out India on the map, draws a dotted line all the way to America, and renames the continent “India.”

He looks at the crew, they all look at each other, and quietly agree to never reveal the secret of this “unholy” place. From the beach, as the boat sails away, the camera pulling back reveals the indian man, standing as he was before...

Except now, he’s contorted into a more extreme shape than before, his leg wrapped “unnaturally” behind his head. Arms extremely interlocked. His new pose appears “impossible” for a human to achieve, much less enjoy as he is now.

He’s smiling with relief, thanks to the Spaniards, having now achieved the next level in posing.

His glow is enlightened. His third eye is filled with joy, illuminating his consciousness, as he watches the Spaniards disappear into the horizon... Escaping by a promise of finding gold.

Self

The first step is to renounce pleasure that comes from outside yourSelf.

Don't try to be happy from making money or getting positive feedback from a woman, or man...

The philosopher Kant said, "We are rich according to the number of things we can leave alone." *8

Question to Osho: 'Is not the search for enlightenment a selfish search?'

"Yes, it is. And the most selfish. There is nothing like it, it is incomparably selfish. And one has to be selfish, there is no other way to be. And all the teachings that go on telling you not to be selfish have not helped; rather, they have distracted your being, they have made you unnatural. Self is your center, and to be selfish is the only way there is to be. The more you try to be not selfish the more you become eccentric. The word eccentric is beautiful; it simply means off-center. Then you are rooted no more in yourself, then you are grounded no more in your being—and a man who is not grounded in his being lives a false life, lives an artificial life. His whole life is more like a dream than like a reality." *9

Once you make this commitment, there's no going back to the previous life you used to know and live.

If you're not ready, don't sign it. Eventually, you will. If not in this lifetime—when you're ready you will.

The Artist

The artist is able to spot the Collective. He opposes it.

This opposition can't be settled and resolved with some absurd "rainbow philosophy" that pretends to include everybody. It can't be dismissed or merged in a melting lump of happy-happy cosmic cheese.

Those pseudo-philosophers who speak about consciousness as if it were one all-embracing ocean, within which we are merely tiny and ineffectual drops of water, have already developed a convenient amnesia about the artist.

Down through time, in the face of every system devised by the priest-class and the issuers of money, the artist has said no.

He has asserted his power.

This is the natural mantle worn by the person who invents, imagines, improvises, creates: power.

The artist not only sees, with great clarity, the brain-dead gatherings of Collectives; he not only sees how they are built; he not only sees how they import and twist the highest ideals to flesh out their slave-programs and objectives; he not only rejects all this; he creates something entirely different.

The artist proliferates. He doesn't reduce.

The artist isn't looking for the "one thing" that will unite us all under a banner of harmony. He knows all such harmonies produce mass hypnosis.

The artist rebels. In rebelling, he reveals the uniqueness of the individual. He doesn't pay lip service to this uniqueness. He demonstrates it.

Whether in art, science, philosophy, healing, or any other field of human endeavor, the person who lives by and through imagination creates new realities. As the artist, he challenges the status quo on every level.

Humanity on this planet has been undergoing a transformation into one ten-billion-member cult. You can find its leaders just by listening to their voices and their sentiments. They all come from the same manual.

Today, we have "the Global outlook." This is the silky cover for drawing in populations to a perverse dream of unity for all.

"We will harmonize the world."

This is exactly the kind of program the artist has always rejected.

The artist says: there are an infinity of worlds.

When that message is lost, we lose what we are and enter into amnesia. ^{*10}

I'm reminded of the book entitled "Russia, As It Is", in which the author Matthew Maly presents a fascinating and compelling presentation of how envy drives horizontal thinking. The envious, horizontal thinking is characteristic of Socialist cultures and redistributive schemes where the goal is make everyone equal at a lower level. In contrast, vertical thinking, has a crucial element that horizontal thinking does not-the internal self dialogue where the productive person asks, "What can I do to improve my situation? What can I do to better grasp the deeper context, the longer memory, or the better ability?" In summary, envy is about looking outward with no desire to improve oneself. Vertical thinking is about looking inward with metacognition in order to improve oneself and become more productive... *12

Saul Alinsky's Rules for Radicals (summarized): 'Create the problem, then be the answer to that problem.' *13

Cowards

People allow themselves to be hushed whenever they are confronted with cries of racism. Nobody, especially the grievance industry, wants to have the hard discussions about blacks and education, unemployment, broken homes, drug use, etc. There's no money to be made in discussing these things, and nobody likes to admit they're wrong. So it's all swept under a very large rug, until the next opportunity arises. This is very much an example of cowardice.

The idea of perpetual victimization cannot survive in a nation that actively seeks to amend racial divisions created and sustained by those who find it profitable. The race card is also an acceptable form of oppression, maintaining that blacks aren't to blame for their own behaviors, and they certainly can't be called upon to address issues within their own community. Saying that someone of a certain skin pigmentation can't do something BECAUSE of said pigmentation is racism, therefore those who cry racism at every opportunity are the REAL racists.

So why are we allowing ourselves to be silenced by those who benefit from racial divides? When they yell racism, we have to be louder. Only with persistence can these controversial issues be met with real and meaningful dialogue.

I can see the comments now: "You're not black, you wouldn't understand." Well people who have never been to war seem to be quick to judge our military strategy, and our troops. Should we silence them because they don't have first-hand knowledge? Good luck; you'd put MSNBC out of business. Then their 3 fans would weep.

I submit that men like Al Sharpton and Jesse Jackson aren't truly interested in alleviating racial tensions because where would their next paycheck come from? If they were really determined to fix things, they would address the aforementioned plagues of the black community. But they won't, because why would they? Who wants to sit there and be lectured about how they need to change their socially-ingrained victim mentality and how they need to better themselves? That doesn't make money, and Sharpton has to pay for all that hair gel somehow. Lord knows it doesn't come from is shouting match of a television show.

Moral of the story: we will accomplish nothing until we refuse to be stifled by those who scream racism when you order a black coffee. ^{*14}

While an emphasis on the code of manhood has generally decreased and androgyny has generally increased as civilization has become more complex and widespread, these changes have not happened linearly. Rather, they move in cycles within this larger trend; during times of crisis, when men are again called on to serve as protectors, an emphasis on manhood gets stronger and gender roles reassert themselves.

For example, after WWII, where men's strength and courage had once again been needed, and male expendability had once more been undeniably demonstrated, traditional gender roles were re-strengthened. Women wanted to create a nurturing home to comfort the men who had spent years sweating and bleeding in the trenches to protect them. And no one doubted that men were men.

The cyclical nature of gender role differentiation is predicted by the Strauss-Howe generational theory. According to this theory, in times of peace and prosperity, the gap between the sexes closes, only to widen again after a crisis...

According to their cyclical model of history, during the coming decade, the crisis will deepen, men will once again be called upon to perform manly deeds, and in the aftermath, the difference between the sexes will widen. Until peace and prosperity are again taken for granted, and the cycle starts over once more. ^{*15}

Vigor

People should understand a genetic process called “hybrid vigor.” There is a reason the Ottoman Turks collected European boys to be raised as Janissaries. The Arab desert Muslims have terrible DNA after 1,400 years of first-cousin inbreeding, but when they impregnate their German conquest victims they will create generations of 100% full Muslims who are half German. Of course, this will happen in every European country, not only Germany.

Americans should not be smug about the collapse and Muslim conquest of Europe. Half-German “Super Muslims” will be a tough adversary. Remember the Ottoman Janissaries from history. They were fearsome fanatics, but also big, strong and smart.

Another crop of “Super Muslims” were the Berbers of Morocco, who provided most of the brains and muscle used for the invasion of Spain in 711 AD. The “desert Arabs” were a scrawny and pitiful bunch. Man for man, they were weaklings compared to the hearty Berber mountain folk. But the Berbers were divided, tribe against tribe, from one Atlas Mountains valley to another. The invading Arab armies picked off one tribe at a time, and forced them all to convert. These newly united Berber Super Muslims were imbued with “convert zeal,” and ready to invade new worlds to spread the banner of Islam.

United for the first time in history, the Muslim Berbers of Morocco (under mostly Arab leadership) turned their natural war-lust against the Christians of Spain. Like the pre-Muslim Berber tribes had been before them, each Spanish Christian principality was divided from the others across the mountains of Spain. The united and newly converted Muslim Berber armies swept over the separate Spanish fiefdoms one after the other.

The point is that Muslim invasions have often succeeded against divided foes who were, man for man, much stronger and even smarter. A generation later, this invigorated hybrid population can be very dangerous, because after the consolidation phase where the invaded region is brought under united Islamic control, they will be straining to burst their borders and conquer new worlds, like the Super Muslim Berbers did in Spain. Think also of Iran in this context. United Arab Muslim armies conquered Persia, creating another brand of hybridized “Super Muslims.”

I shudder to think of what German Super Muslims will be capable of in thirty years, if Islam is triumphant in Europe...

Good people, when well armed, show criminals how hopelessly outnumbered they are. Good citizens, when well armed, prevent tyrannical governments from rising within their midst. Good patriots, when well armed, teach other nations that a free society works and can't be threatened. A lawless bully hopes for an unarmed victim. Deny him that and he'll seek easier prey, give up his lawlessness, or become extinct. A fool believes that disarming the “law abiding” prevents crime, when it merely enables the criminal who submits to no fool's law. The politician respects or fears an armed constituency because “We The People” limit his power, keeping him under the rule of law, and accountable. The US Constitution gives no rights to the people. It is a document which limits the power of Government and enumerates the inalienable rights that the people already have – endowed so by their Creator. Primarily, the Second Amendment prevents the possibility of any tyrant, foreign or domestic, to oppress this nation again; written with the idea that an empowered populace prevents despotism. Our responsibility: Resist any who seek to relieve us of our rights and duties to this nation by any attempted means; be it by force, false hopes and promises, platitudes of peace, even politically correct and convenient reasoning. If sacrificed or forfeited, rights are seldom regained. Love your neighbor, defend the weak, and hold the line against all forms of tyranny. *17

Corrective learning always begins with the awakening of the Spiritual eye, and the turning away from the belief in physical sight. The reason this so often entails fear is because man is afraid of what his Spiritual eye will see. We said before that the Spiritual eye cannot see error, and is capable only of looking beyond it to the defense of Atonement. There is no doubt that the Spiritual eye DOES produce extreme discomfort by what It sees. Yet what man forgets is that the discomfort is NOT the final outcome of Its perception. When the Spiritual eye is permitted to look upon the defilement of the altar, it also looks IMMEDIATELY toward the Atonement.

NOTHING the Spiritual eye perceives can induce fear. EVERYTHING that results from accurate spiritual awareness is merely channelized toward correction. Discomfort is aroused only to bring the NEED for correction forcibly into awareness. What the physical eye sees is NOT corrective, nor can it be corrected by ANY device which can be seen physically. As long as a man believes in what his physical sight tells him, ALL his corrective behavior will be misdirected. The REAL vision is obscured because man cannot endure to see his own defiled altar. But since the altar HAS been defiled, his state becomes doubly dangerous unless it IS perceived.

The fear of healing arises, in the end, from an unwillingness to accept the unequivocal fact that healing is necessary. Man is not willing to look on what he has done TO HIMSELF. *19

Care about what other people think and you will always be their prisoner. *20

Socialism: So great that it has to be implemented by force. *21

Superficial Rationality

While there are 'ruthless' pursuers of a private self interest, that use any ruse to get wealth and power (as they define it), there are many more who have accepted the belief in man made climate change as an extension of man made pollution, exploitation and blind greedy selfishness in all his works.

When a view is accepted that validates judgement of an evil in another—or in this case ourselves collectively, it breeds a self-righteousness—especially when the other does not agree with one's persuasions. A superficial rationality is soon abandoned for more 'effective' measures—as the goal is used to justify the means.

Whenever a goal is used to justify the means, a masked personal agenda is distorting and filtering perceptions and interpretations such as to only allow those interpretations and communications that 'support' the cause. Thus communication is lost to coercive intent. And indeed the mechanism of denial that is inherent in such a dynamic is immediately projected onto those who 'will not listen' (agree).

That a campaign was uncovered to be operating as a kind of propaganda war rather than scientific endeavour may itself have been a reaction to meeting a propaganda war from vested interests in countering anything that was believed to threaten those interests.

But clearly, whatever issues of climate are involved—including our degree of influence, issues of consciousness have coloured and distorted them so as to make it difficult to discuss and debate in a simple willingness to listen.

I see this issue as being 'science on trial'—for Science itself cannot be guilty of anything—being simply a tool—but the manner in which it is practiced or subverted is of course open to being fitted to masked human agenda—whether the opportunistic manipulations of deceit, or that of unconscious archetypes of the split consciousness in fear, guilt and projection.

Science is liable to vanity and arrogant blindness as is any human endeavour, and just as tacitly communicated collective self interest can fuel a financial bubble of unreality that then crashes to misery, so too can a world view—considered real in its day—come crashing around us to reveal that we were deceived in ourselves.

It is true that there are those who choose to initiate or guide and harvest from deceit—but to rest in such perception is a convenient truth for the continued evasion of the uncovering of one's own personal agenda.

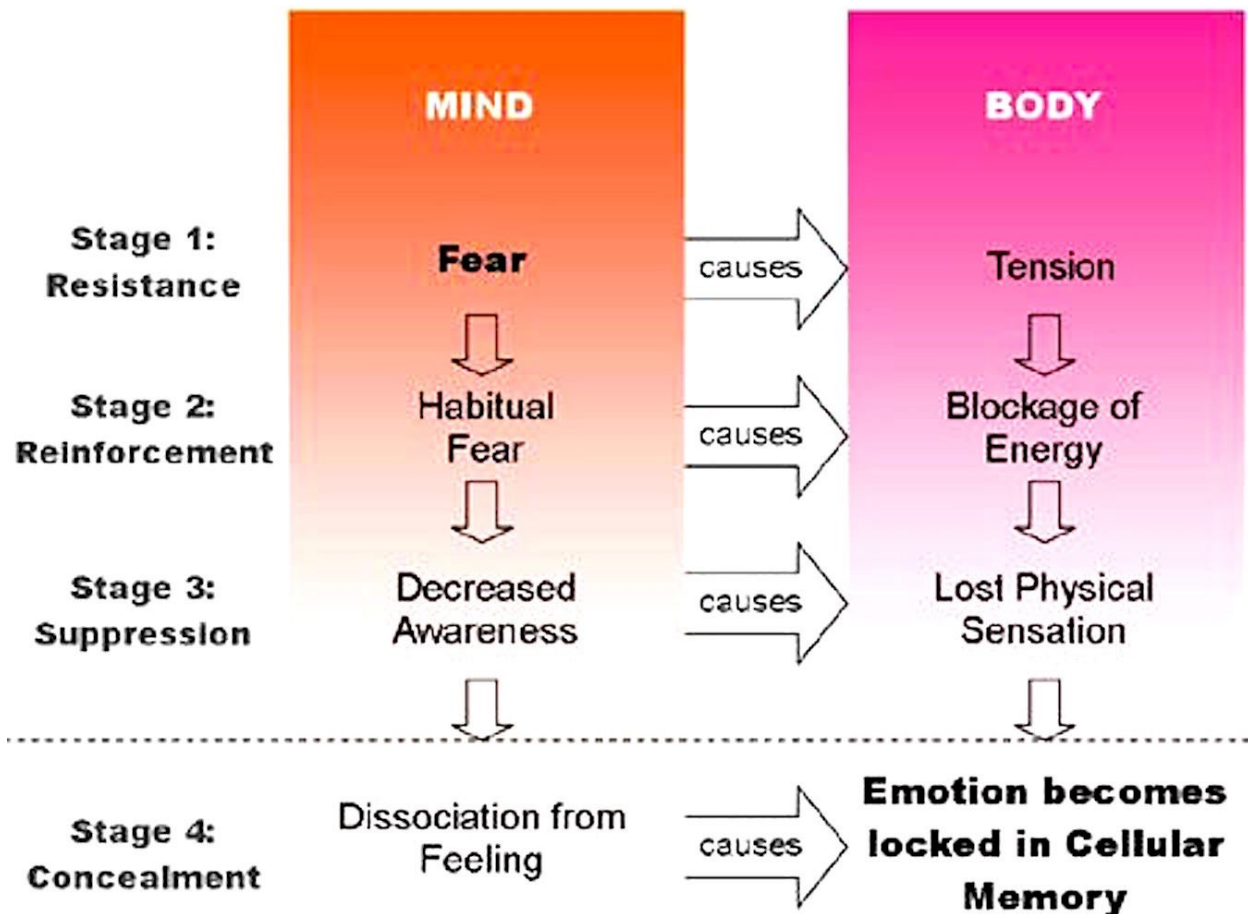

Change is the only constant - even change changes! And by it does Life reflect unto Itself.

When we fall asleep in meanings that we defend against change, we become suckers to our own scam—and of course invite others to join our 'party' at both ends of the 'food chain'.

I have a globalist goal here that I wish to share—and that is for global well being. I feel that this is never going to be as a result of enforcing any agenda on anyone—but of course force is part of the spectrum of our communication and necessary in maintaining conditions in which harm to self and others is limited such that better ways can be discovered.

But coercion operating through a mask is the 'same old story' of a fearfully disconnected blindness that we all know in ourselves at one degree or another. ^{*22}

Mind-Body Communication: The Creation of Cellular Memory from Fear

ABOVE: THE PROCESS OF FEAR BEING TRAPPED BY THE MIND'S PERCEPTION BECOMES A PHYSICAL EXPERIENCE WITHIN THE BODY. *23

The world of daily life impinges via the mind and senses and results in attractions and aversions as well as providing meaning and value, which can be recontextualized via spiritual awareness and development. The struggle for the spiritual aspirant is to sort perception from essence and mentalization from subjective experiential validation. The world that is seen is the product of the emotional/mental processing, which also results in abstract meaning. As has been described in the previous books in this series, one's vision and experience of the world are a reflection of one's prevailing level of consciousness.

With elimination of all nominalization, conjecture, and projection, it can only be truly said that the world and everything in it merely 'is'. It is obvious upon reflection that what it 'is', is exactly what it 'means', without adjectives and descriptive mentalizations. *24

Passing Through the Gates

Distractions and Attractions

The animal energy of the ego results in focus by which psychic energy is directed and thereby emotionalized. The emotionalized mental content then attracts attention and becomes self-propagating. The result is attractions and aversions, as well as diversions, that eventually lead to entrapment as routine behaviors that, by the cathexis of energy and interest, gain importance and eventual levels of dominant behaviors, feelings, and thinking. These eventuate as energy fields of consciousness that align with and become entrained with the overall impersonal attractor fields of human consciousness. Thus, by selection of options, the individual 'tunes in' like a receiving set does with radio or television frequencies. Thus, to fear or hate attunes to frequencies completely different from those of forgiveness or acceptance. Each consciousness level influences perception, associated attitudes, and their concomitant positionalities.

Addiction to the ego's proclivities is like intoxication where pleasure is derived from the emotional payoff of negativity. Thus, negative positionalities tend to be self-perpetuating habits akin to addiction, based on presumptions and the inner seductive lure of the gratification of basic animal instincts. By repetition, they eventually gain dominance and control, which is the innate purpose of the narcissistic ego in the first place.

In spiritual work, these are termed 'temptations,' and it is then presumed that sacrifice is necessary to give them up because one is relinquishing the pleasure of the emotional 'juice' of 'being right,' 'getting even,' feeling sorry for oneself, etc. A Pavlovian type of conditioning takes place as a self-reinforcing reward system that then becomes autonomous. Subsequent to that, interference with these surreptitious gratifications results in an unpleasant feeling of frustration and deprivation. Thus, it can be commonly observed that the ego's emotional mind clings to negativity and slavish bondage, and it mightily resists letting go and moving on to higher levels of functioning and coping mechanisms. As an example, the pit of resentment/blame/self-pity/victim is commonly a circuitous trap that quickly seeks validation by social encouragement and the pseudoimportance of self-inflating positionalities.

It is not uncommon for people to spend an entire lifetime nursing a grudge with elaborate justifications, retrospective falsification of memory, and deceptions. This commonly observed psychological complex is composed of a circuitous mix of all the consciousness levels below 200. It becomes highly defended and stubbornly immune to any challenge, much less the willingness to let go or surrender. As a result, forgiveness, acceptance, reason, and love are seen as antithetical to the ego's secret inner purposes.

It is not uncommon for people to destroy their entire lives in defense of nonintegrated fallacies that are carefully nurtured and clung to about themselves, others, and the world. Self-deception is an innate defect of the emotional ego/mind, which, without the light of spiritual truth, is self-reinforcing, resulting in destructive consequences that preclude actual happiness. The victim is unable to discern pleasure (derived from the negativity) from actual happiness, which is really unknown by such people. This pathological complex is so strongly defended that people actually choose to die rather than give it up or even question its self-defeating premises. Fortunately, this vicious cycle is sometimes interrupted by a confrontational life crisis that ends up being a blessing in disguise.

Escape to Freedom from the Emotional Ego/Body/Mind

The levels below calibration level 200 tend to be self-propagating because of the seductive emotional pleasure of the ego's animal-instinct pay-off. The only way out is by integrated self-honesty, which, unfortunately, is not even possible to accomplish when one is dominated and captured by this negative emotional complex. Because this complex consists of the animal energies of force, it is only the more powerful energies of truth that have any capacity to bring forth recovery. Due to the nature of Divinity, intervention is by invitation since Love is power and does not operate by instruments of force. Compassion arises from realizing that seventy-eight percent of the world's population calibrates below the level of Truth at 200, and this figure rises close to one-hundred percent in some subcultures and regions of the world that survive primarily by virtue of only animal instincts.

A Simple Two-Step Escape from the Negativity of the Ego: The Mechanism of Truth

To transcend all these limitations and cut through the complexity, it is only necessary to accept two ideas:

1. Negativity is based on an energetic force (animal origin) that can be overcome only by power, which is solely of Divine origin. Therefore, it is operationally necessary to request and invoke God's help by whatever means available.
2. Disidentify with the body/emotions/mind as 'me'. Be truthful and admit that they are yours but not you. While this may seem artificial, strange, foreign, and unnatural in the beginning, the basic reality is that it is a truth of higher order, which makes it a very powerful and formidable tool. The mind will try to deny this reality as well as truth (that is what it is 'supposed to do') because Truth is intuited as its nemesis.

Millions of people over the ages and in current life have been willing to actually die rather than acknowledge these two simple premises. People are willing to blow up themselves and others rather than admit they could be mistaken. Realize that the ego will happily lead you to your death and kill you rather than humbly admit that it made a mistake or could even be oh, that most horrible of all words: "Wrong."

Better than death and a hellish life is it to grow up and admit that the mind is misleading, cunning, ruthless, and not one's friend! The core of the ego is narcissistic pride, and secretly, it thinks that it is God. Without undue strain, it can be caught in its secret, inflationary, dualistic presumptions, which are undone by simple humility. This is the doorway to freedom and the experience of happiness.

One discovers the true nature of the mind when one tries to escape its clutches. When analyzed, the mind is seen to be a complexity of the presumption of 'my' thoughts plus a collection of observed factual data. Data is useful; in contrast, thoughts and views about that data are unreliable and, of necessity, distorted by the supposition of their being 'mine,' with all the attendant positionalities.

Once thoughts or feelings are labeled as 'mine,' they become magically imbued with presumptive omniscience and an assumed sovereign validity. These constitute what has classically been described in all spiritual literature as illusion, which frequently progresses to delusion. Unless stopped by integrous doubt and questioning, the rampant mind is on an endless siege to defeat reliable, verifiable truth, which would thereby challenge its presumptive sovereignty (i.e., the universal human proclivity to defend being 'right' against all evidence to the contrary).

The undoing of domination by the mind can be accomplished by one single step—humility—which is reinforced by simply recognizing that the mind is not sovereign, omniscient, or even capable of telling truth from falsehood. It has a utilitarian value when it comes to physical survival and the recognition of objects. Even when it comes to recognizing the physical world, the mind is incapable of understanding what the world means, just as it does not even recognize the ultrasimple observation that Evolution is Creation.

The mind is a useful tool within the protective confines and rules of logic and reason or intrinsic operational constraints and discipline. Thus, the mind is at its best when it operates as science, which does not allow for emotionality or the violation of logic. A friend once said, “I just realized that I don’t have to have an opinion about everything—what a relief!” This discovery led to the enjoyment of greater freedom because opinions are imprisoning and restrictive, as well as routinely contentious and argumentative.

If thoughts or ideas are not really ‘mine’, then whence do they arise and who is their author? Actually, they don’t have a ‘who’ of origin at all but instead merely arise from a ‘what.’ The content of a calibratable field of consciousness is like a thought bank regimented by a specific energy field of a level of the collective consciousness of mankind. Similar thoughts, concepts, and ideas congregate at various levels and are orchestrated under the influence of the attention of the central ‘attractor field’ that, like gravity, attracts ideas of similar gravity or density. The phenomenon is similar to the stratification of fishes and life forms at different depths of the sea. In human life, there are bottom feeders as well as those who leap above the surface of the water.

Certain types of thinking styles, belief systems, and memes (catchy phrases) are endemic to certain societies and subcultures that have been dominated by myths over the centuries. For example, there are major countries where integrity, honesty, and fairness are not even considered to be important in daily transactions. Instead, all interactions are based entirely on gain, and deception is a valued social technique and skill. In such a culture, morality is not only absent but also viewed as irrational, of no value, and indicative of weakness, as many naïve tourists discover when they return home with a supposedly priceless antiquity and discover it is actually worth only a few cents.

Clarification of the Ubiquitous Victim/Perpetrator Dualistic Fallacy

By spiritual endeavor, one discovers that it is oneself who has been a captive and a ‘victim’ ensnared by the clever deceptions of the ego. All of the ego’s tricks can be observed in the evolution of the various species of the animal kingdom over great periods of time where entrapment, deception, rivalry, ego gain, self-servingness, camouflage, and force subserve survival. The evolution of the hominid eventuated as Homo sapiens, and concordantly, the prefrontal cortex emerged in front of the animal brain, which remained under the domination of animal instincts up to consciousness level 200. The animal instincts are totally directed to personal gain and continue to follow that path in conflict with the energy of spiritual power, truth, and especially love. The ego’s deception is clever in that it deludes its victim and prisoner into believing that the perpetrators are ‘out there’, whereas they are actually innate and ‘in here.’

What is the identity of the real perpetrator? Upon investigation, it will be found that there is no ‘who’ but just the energy field of a specific level of consciousness that arose throughout evolutionary time and still prevails, and by which the majority of the world’s population is dominated or still imprisoned. One can thereby see the wisdom and truth of the Buddha’s saying, “Rare it is to be born a human being; rarer still to hear the truth, and even rarer still, having heard the truth, to pursue it.” The truth of the statement is verified by consciousness calibration, which identifies that only 0.4 percent of the world’s population is capable of reaching the state of Unconditional Love.

Unconditional Love is a practical, reasonable, and reachable goal in a human lifetime. From that level, spiritual commitment and dedication evolve into states of exquisite joy—even ecstasy—and eventually reach the level of Peace at 600, which is the beginning level of the mystic. The way of the mystic, in the true classical meaning of the term, can be defined as Devotional Nonduality.^{*28}

Weakness

Everywhere in the western world, people look at the savage violence that is a daily occurrence in the Muslim world and shake their heads in stunned disbelief. A pastor of a very small Christian flock in Florida burns a Koran. Weeks later at literally the global antipode, Muslim imams drive through neighborhoods in a vehicle with loudspeakers attached, calling the townsfolk to riot. The townsfolk respond, and before it is all over, at least 22 innocent people are dead at the hands of these townsfolk, with at least two of them beheaded. How is this possible? How can this be? How can human behavior and culture be so monstrously different? Is this difference attributable to nothing more than environmental nurture theory?

No. There is something else. There is a catalyst—absent in every other culture on earth—that has poisoned the cultural soil, thus yielding the fruit of bad harvest for nearly 1,400 years. That catalyst is inbreeding. As a direct result, the Muslim population is mentally developmentally disabled on a mass scale.

All human cultures display strict prohibitions against inbreeding and consanguineous marriage. Incest is a universal taboo. This is a transcendent anthropological fact. As a Roman Catholic, I attribute this to what is called "The Natural Law." Every human person without exception is created by God with a deep, innate knowledge of good and evil, right and wrong. Stabbing someone in the neck for no reason whatsoever is just as wrong here in Lone Tree, Colorado as it is in the Amazon basin, as it is on the high plateaus of Mongolia.

But there is one culture, one faux "religion," that expressly condones and encourages consanguineous marriage and breeding. That system is Islam, and the document that explicitly ratifies incest is the Koran, specifically Sura 4 verse 23:

Prohibited for you (in marriage) are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, the sisters of your fathers, the sisters of your mothers, the daughters of your brother, the daughters of your sister, your nursing mothers, the girls who nursed from the same woman as you, the mothers of your wives, the daughters of your wives with whom you have consummated the marriage—if the marriage has not been consummated, you may marry the daughter. Also prohibited for you are the women who were married to your genetic sons. Also, you shall not be married to two sisters at the same time—but do not break up existing marriages.

Sounds like an exhaustive list—but it is not. It is the most lax incest prohibition in all of human culture. There is a massive omission: cousins only once removed. In the Muslim culture, marriage and breeding between first cousins has existed since day one. Mohammed himself married Zaynab, who was his father's sister's daughter. Mohammed and Zaynab were direct first cousins.

Marrying your first cousin is the genetic equivalent of marrying your half-sibling. Think of your own family. Let's say your dad has a sister, who is "Aunt Linda" to you. Your dad and Aunt Linda, being full siblings, have exactly the same genetic constitution. Their family trees prior to their generation are identical. Therefore, if Aunt Linda has any children, who are your first cousins, they are, in genetic terms, 50% identical to you. You share one of your two genetic constituencies with your cousins, thus making them genetically the same as a half-sibling would be.

First cousin marriage for just one generation is extremely risky in and of itself. This is why virtually every other culture on earth prohibits it, and treats it as a cultural taboo. When two people come together who carry so many similar genetic alleles, the chance of an undesirable recessive trait expressing itself in their offspring soars. Now, understanding that single-generational risk, understand that Muslims have been marrying their first cousins over and over again for 1,400 years. Sit in stillness for a moment with the full, terrifying gravity of this.

The Reproductive Health Journal reports the following rates on consanguinity in Muslim countries. Where a statistical range has been recorded, I have used the lower parameter:

Algeria: 22.6%
Bahrain: 39.4%
Egypt (North): 20.9%
Egypt (Nubia-South): 60.5%
Iraq: 47.0%
Jordan: 28.5%
Kuwait: 22.5%
Lebanon: 12.8%
Libya: 48.4%
Mauritania: 47.2%
Morocco: 19.9%
Oman: 56.3%
Palestine: 17.5%
Qatar: 54.0%
Saudi Arabia: 42.1%
Sudan: 44.2%
Syria: 30.3%
Tunisia: 20.1%
United Arab Emirates: 40.0%
Yemen: 40.0%

Muslim men are never, ever allowed to be around, see, converse with or otherwise interact with any females outside of their families. However, they are permitted to act as chaperones for their female first cousins. If your first cousin is the only person of the opposite sex you ever get to interact with, is it any surprise that Muslims are marrying their first cousins more as the rule than as the exception?

According to the BBC, 55% of Pakistani-Britons are married to a first cousin, and as a corollary to that produce "just under a third" of all children in the UK with genetic illnesses, despite being only 3% of the total births. As a direct result of inbreeding, the Muslim population is the only population on earth that is mentally and physically devolving. This inherent weakness makes Muslim populations more susceptible to nefarious, oppressive leadership and mass manipulation. The amount of objective evidence supporting this statement is colossal and obvious.

But there is hope. All is not lost. In my education in animal husbandry, I was keenly interested in my genetics classes. One of the key concepts in farm animal genetics is "hybrid vigor." This is the genetic principle which states that the crossbreeding of two genetically diverse plants or animals of the same species yields offspring of increased vigor and other superior qualities. All plants and animals have been designed to "bring out the best in themselves," and our DNA has built-in fail-safes to edit and correct any flaws which creep into our DNA over time. Given this, if the people now living under the fist of Islam are finally freed and can court and love and marry whomever they choose, thus reopening the genetic pool, this will allow hybrid vigor to cleanse and restore to full health their populations. ^{*29}

Failure

This week, President Obama spoke at the National Prayer Breakfast, where he proceeded to inform an audience of Christians that they ought not judge radical Muslims currently engaged in beheading journalists, defenestrating gays, crucifying children, and engaging in mass rape of women. Why, pray tell, should Christians remain silent? Because, Obama informed them with Ivy League pride, "Unless we get on our high horse and think that this is unique to some other place, remember that during the Crusades and Inquisition, people committed terrible deeds in the name of Christ. In our home country, slavery and Jim Crow all too often was justified in the name of Christ. So it is not unique to one group or one religion."

At some point in our collective history, our ancestors engaged in tribal warfare and cannibalized their fallen enemies. So shut up about the Nazis, you hypocrites.

Forget Obama's historical ignorance, if you can, for just a moment. Forget that the Crusades, for all their brutality and horror, were a response to Islamic aggression; forget that the Inquisition was an attempt to systematize legal punishment for anti-Christian activity rather than leaving it to the heated mob; forget that all abolitionist leaders were devout Christians; forget that hundreds of thousands of Christians marched to their deaths during the Civil War singing the words "as He died to make men holy, so we die to make men free"; forget that the chief leaders of the civil rights movement were Christian leaders like Reverend Martin Luther King Jr.

Focus instead on the fact that President Obama felt the necessity to defend radical Islam at all. Why defend radical Islam? What is the point?

Obama defends radical Islam because he does not think in terms of ideology, but in terms of power dynamics. If radical Muslims commit terror, it is because they feel helpless and hopeless. If they feel helpless and hopeless, it is because Westerners made them feel that way. If Westerners made them feel that way, it is because Western ideology must be exploitative and evil.

In other words, Obama cites the Crusades as justification for shutting Christians up because the Crusades caused all of this. If Christians had just kept their pieholes shut several thousand years ago, none of this would have happened. Obama's ignorant and bigoted gloss on Christian history isn't a throwaway line: it's the centerpiece of his philosophy. Radical Islam isn't the problem because Christianity is. And we know that Christianity is the problem because radical Islam is violent. In this skewed version of reality, modern Christianity's fantastic record is a direct outgrowth of its disreputable past.

Obama extends this bizarre philosophy to every part of life. Those who murder Jews in Israel aren't motivated by radical Islam: They were exploited by those evil, non-murdering Jews. Those who riot in Ferguson aren't motivated by a corrupt ideology of victimhood: They were exploited long ago by those who cower in their stores, trying to prevent the looting. Those who sire children they abandon, drop out of school and refuse to hold down jobs aren't predictable refuse of a broken philosophy: They are victims of those who get married, stay in school and hold down jobs. Success is the ultimate indicator that your philosophy is evil. Failure is the ultimate indicator that you are a victim, regardless of your ideology.

Obama's philosophy is the philosophy of failure. No wonder radical Islam holds a cherished place in his heart, while Judeo-Christian religion find itself in his doghouse. ^{*31}

Mohammed was a poor young man in Mecca who married a rich older women.

He now had time to burn so he climbed local big hills and one day came back saying he "heard voices..."
she encouraged him...

he started preaching a new way of life...

he spent 7 years going to Medina across the desert...

Mohammed came across other caravans and started beheading anyone refusing to accept his beliefs (sound familiar?) (this was 1,400 years ago... LONG before America could be blamed)...

Mo formed and LED an army that beat 7 christian armies until driven back at Tours, France.

Some geneticists believe he heard nothing on these hikes up the hills... that he was an epileptic and had seizures.

At any rate he was a vicious warlord with many young wives, some very young... not in any way a prince of peace...
thus the hateful violent intolerant Quran passages (that have NOT be edited on purpose... despite centuries of so-called blame for the murders of innocents).

I had all this in grad school before the PC age (of course)...

The 3rd ruler of his empire was Mohammed Ali...

so now you know where boxer Cassius Clay got the name.

The Quran allows lying, even under oath...

"to protect islam"???...

which can mean anything.

Educate yourself...

DARE TO COMPARE:

Jesus never commanded an army, Mohammad did....

Jesus never ordered people to be killed, Mohammed did....

Jesus never banished other religions from the land, Mohammed did.....

Jesus never ordered amputation, binding or torture, Mohammed did....

Jesus did not have 11 wives, Mohammed did....

Jesus did not take his stepson's wife, Mohammed did....

Jesus did not order the assassination of his critics, Mohammed did....

Jesus did not terrorize unbelieving tribes, Mohammed did....

Jesus did not ask a father if he could marry his 6 year old daughter when he was 53, Mohammed did....

Jesus saved an adulterer from stoning, Mohammed reintroduced it....

Jesus was a teacher and healer, Mohammed was a warlord and conquerer. Stop the denial. It is NOT selling!

I lived and worked in the Middle East for many years. Arabs love using the Crusades as an example of Western aggression. It is interesting to remind them that Charles Martel, Charlemagne's grandfather, defeated a Muslim army at Tours in Southern France a couple of hundred years before the First Crusade. ^{*32}

Infidel

Last month I attended my annual training session that's required for maintaining my state prison security clearance.

During the training session there was a presentation by three speakers representing the Roman Catholic, Protestant and Muslim faiths , who each explained their beliefs.

I was particularly interested in what the Islamic had to say. The Muslim gave a great presentation of the basics of Islam, complete with a video. After the presentations, time was provided for questions and answers then it was my turn. I directed my question to the Muslim and asked:

'Please, correct me if I'm wrong, but I understand that most Imams and clerics of Islam have declared a holy jihad [Holy war] against the infidels of the world and, that by killing an infidel, (which is a command to all Muslims) they are assured of a place in heaven. If that's the case, can you give me the definition of an infidel?'

There was no disagreement with my statements and, without hesitation, he replied, ' Non-believers! '

I responded, 'So, let me make sure I have this straight. All followers of Allah have been commanded to kill everyone who is not of your faith so they can have a place in heaven. Is that correct?'

The expression on his face changed from one of authority and command to that of a little boy who had just been caught with his hand in the cookie jar. He sheepishly replied, 'Yes.'

I then stated, 'Well, sir, I have a real problem trying to imagine The Pope commanding all Catholics to kill those of your faith or Dr. Stanley ordering all Protestants to do the same in order to guarantee them a place in heaven!'

The Muslim was speechless! I continued, 'I also have a problem with being your friend when you and your brother clerics are telling your followers to kill me!'

Let me ask you a question:

Would you rather have your Allah, who tells you to kill me in order for you to go to heaven, or my Jesus who tells me to love you because I am going to heaven and He wants you to be there with me?'

You could have heard a pin drop as the Imam hung his head in shame.

Needless to say, the organizers and/or promoters of the 'Diversification' training seminar were not happy with my way of dealing with the Islamic Imam, and exposing the truth about the Muslims' beliefs.

In twenty years there will be enough Muslim voters in the U.S. To elect the President!

I think everyone in the U.S. Should be required to read this, but with the ACLU, there is no way this will be widely publicized, unless each of us sends it on!

This is your chance to make a difference.... *33

Sin

Abraham Lincoln said, "To sin by silence when they should protest makes cowards of men." It's time to be concerned America. Enough is enough. This is among the main issues of the 21st Century. Over 500,000+ Muslim refugees mainly from Somalia under the refugee immigrant resettlement program are being relocated throughout America. Did you vote for that? No one voted for this! The massive immigration coming across our own borders is a whole other issue...

One only has to look at England, Belgium, France, Germany, Russia, and the rest of Europe to understand the immigration issue. It is sad, what Paris has become, have you been there lately? Massive immigration and Multiculturalism is literally destroying Europe. There are now over 700 "Islamic no go Muslim Zones" within England, France and Germany.

Islam is a political ideology; it is the antithesis of a free society.

We are now approaching over 2400 mosques in America, along with 2.7 million Muslims here in the USA. The Mosques can be used for converting homegrown terrorists, as is the case in the Boston Marathon bombing. Anwar al-Awlaki, former known Taliban terrorist who preached a hateful ideology at inciting violence against America was an Imam at a Mosque in Virginia. How many more "Awlaki's" are being bred in the Mosques in America?

The number of Mosques is supposed to double or triple over the next decade. How many will preach hate and destruction against America? Take a look at Dearborn, Michigan (they now have Muslim zones, where the police are afraid to enter.) The Muslim immigration and mosques continue with Maine, Tennessee, Minnesota, New York, Indiana, S. Dakota, California and Colorado taking in most of the immigrants so far, your state could be next.

I have no issue with the peaceful Muslim that wants to integrate into our culture and follow our laws.

The problem lies in that the militant Muslims dominates and wants to force Islam and Sharia law upon us all...

And Islam wants to "control free speech" and will not accept any criticism of their religion, a dangerous precedent if allowed to continue...

Ayaan Hirsi Ali, former Muslim speaking from experience says it best, "Just like Nazism started with Hitler's vision, the Islamic vision is a Caliphate—a society ruled by Sharia law. Violence is inherent in Islam—it's a destructive nihilistic cult of death, and legitimizes murder.

Why should America be forced into adapting to their culture? This is our America; we should not have to change one iota to accommodate them.

"When good men and woman are quiet, evil always wins." Forget about being labeled a racist, bigot or being politically correct. The time has come to speak up and take a stand... They are making inroads into our schools, universities, cities and towns and even our own government.

They want Sharia law and even our textbooks changed to put a more favorable light on Islam. (And they are succeeding folks) When Jews, Christians, Priests, Infidels are being murdered and Churches are being burned down and recently 59 students locked up in a school room, the building was set fire allowing no one to escape and anyone trying to escape was slaughtered by Islamic militants, where is the condemnation from the nearly 3 million Muslims that are here? For the majority of them there is total silence and none condemn the atrocities that continue to go on in Europe. That alone speaks volumes on their real intent.

Europe is losing the battle all ready and America will be next. What you do today will affect your children and grandchildren and future generations of America yet unborn. One generation of silence on the issue due to political correctness is all it takes.

Stand up and be counted to defeat this real threat upon America. Voice your opinion, let your congressmen, senators, and school boards, and know how you feel on the issue. Forget about being labeled and do what is right for future generations of America. We need a permanent solution, time is running out. Let us not become the next Europe.

Do it for your children and grandchildren's and generations yet unborn in America. As for me I refuse to be silent on the issue. One person can make a difference but think what 1 million united can do. My goal is to get the word out to 1 million people. Please pass this along if you agree. ^{*34}

"There are none so blind as those who will not see."

When you read this you will understand why Obama refuses to say the words "radical Islam..."

Did you know that we now have a Muslim government?

John Brennan, current head of the CIA converted to Islam while stationed in Saudi Arabia. Obama's top advisor, Valerie Jarrett, is a Muslim who was born in Iran where her parents still live. Hillary Clinton's top advisor, Huma Abedin is a Muslim, whose mother and brother are involved in the now outlawed Muslim Brotherhood in Egypt.

Assistant Secretary for Policy Development for Homeland Security, Arif Aikhan, is a Muslim. Homeland Security Adviser, Mohammed Elibiary, is a Muslim. Obama adviser and founder of the Muslim Public Affairs Council, Salam al-Marayati, is a Muslim. Obama's Sharia Czar, Imam Mohamed Magid, of the Islamic Society of North America is a Muslim. Advisory Council on Faith-Based Neighborhood Partnerships, Eboo Patel, is a Muslim.

And last but not least, our closet Muslim himself, Barack Hussein Obama.

It's questionable if Obama ever officially took the oath of office when he was sworn in. He didn't repeat the oath properly to defend our nation and our Constitution. Later the Democrats claimed he was given the oath again in private?

CIA director John Brennan took his oath on a copy of the Constitution, not a Bible. Congressman, Keith Ellison took his oath on a copy of the Qur'an. Considering all these appointments, it would explain why Obama and his minions are systematically destroying our nation, supporting radical Muslim groups worldwide, opening our southern border, and turning a blind eye to the genocide being perpetrated on Christians all over Africa and the Middle East.

The more damage Obama does, the more arrogant he's become!

Our nation and our government has been infiltrated by people who want to destroy us. It can only get worse! ^{*35}
