... generally refers to the totality of divine powers. ^{*1}

Our "owners" have manipulated matters such that the wealth and power of the stored productivity of the former "morally correct" western "civilization" is now under their control. When powers in the west go "rah, rah, US", they are really stealing credit and ownership of the accomplishments of our far wiser ancestors, aware of what the "school of hard knocks" does to fools and foolish societies. These idiot sons / daughters have inherited and falsely believe "power to coerce" is infallible and inexhaustible. It is not. using this "power" to enslave the productive loses "consent of the productive" and, the resources controlled by this power are dissipated and frittered away, in a futile attempt to enslave humanity (and, it is "consent of the productive" that determines success or failure of ANY civilization)... ^{*2}

I put it to you, that you are not looking for what you think you are looking. Dig deeper. Dig so deep that you start becoming aware of something beyond the ability to describe it or to define it. Where you start "sensing" or "feeling" something is there, urging you on, but you don't know what it is, or why it is. You can't name it. When you try to, it doesn't fit to any word in language. Pause your reading now and do it before you read on.

Pursuit of knowledge won't fit. Pursuit of truth won't fit. Pursuit of freedom, or faith, etc. nothing will match that sense, that feeling.

Then, you have to make a decision. You cannot continue here without having become aware of what I'm talking about above. Are you willing to let go of all the motivations and reasons you have for being on the journey you are on? The seeking? Are you willing to let go of everything you believe about what you thought is reality? No, you aren't yet ready even if you think you are. Why? Because when you reach this point, you weren't willing to die to find out what that sense is, what that feeling is. Its tangible but you can't touch it, its just out of reach but you know that something inside you is what holds the answers, it will show you what now, what next. You know it, but you don't know how to get to it, how to touch it, or understand it. You aren't willing to risk your life to do it because you don't want it enough. You are simply intrigued or curious. But that's not good enough.

Now re-evaluate yourself. See if the following has some truth in it. What you really wanted is comfort. You wanted is to be in control. By gaining knowledge it makes you feel more secure. You think you would feel less discontent if you know more, you would feel less vulnerable if you could understand more. But this is a trap. It is a loop. Every answer you find will bring more questions. Every wealth you gain will bring more emptiness. Every contentment you gain will bring more discontent. Consider that there is another way to find what you are looking for. Let's continue to where we were.

If you sense this nameless thing inside you that tugs at you with a question mark, you will know whether you want to know it bad enough. You must be willing to risk your life in order to reach it. No technique or trick will get you to it. No reasoning, no knowledge, no faith, no formula. Only your pure desire and single-minded willpower with a willingness to risk it all. All the answers lie there. Everything. Its inside you. It has a price. Its price is you. It is activated by your exchange of who you think you are and 'what' you think is real, for its mystery in return. Yes, you will have to risk it all or it will remain what it is now. An obscure unnamed, undefined curious sense.

You only need to be willing to die, really willing to do that, in order to reach it. You will discover who you are really. Your life purpose. You will be able to put it into words. No, you can't imagine what it is. You can't think it. You can't feel it. You can only know everything if you are willing to risk it all. Its not something you do. Its something you are. You can only reach it when you stretch yourself beyond the questions - What do you want? Why do you want it? How will you get it? You will only discover that which is out of reach when you keep asking yourself those questions until you stretch yourself further and further and run out of something to answer. Not with words at least. But when you start asking yourself the question with your being - not with your head! Not with your heart! Stretch beyond what you want, why you want it, and how you will get it! It doesn't matter what you want! It doesn't matter why! It doesn't matter how you will get it! You cannot ask the question you want to ask with words! You can't ask it with feeling, with wishful desire! You can't ask it with any sense or any reason. You can only ask it with your being, with who you are, and it is only through keeping stretching yourself until you are beyond thought, beyond feeling, beyond sense or reason, that you will reach it.

And when you reach it, you will know it. You will know that what you think and feel, what you sense and reason - none of that mattered. Those are merely tools like your arms and legs. They cannot give you knowledge or truth. They cannot give you fulfillment or freedom or faith. Thought, reason, feeling, knowledge, etc - they cannot give you any meaning. You will know who you are. You will know what your life purpose is. Your whole body will shake and your intellectual mind will be in suspension. Your emotions will be completely dormant. Pure expression will come forth from you. Your body will not be able to stand upright and you might not be aware of your physical surroundings anymore. Or perhaps, only vaguely. You are not swept up or high. You are simply rediscovering something you've forgotten, from before you can start remembering.

No, I will not explain further. Words are limiting. You must do it. You must know it. Know it beyond words, beyond definition, beyond explanation. It will only become a stumbling block to talk more. Do it, discover for yourself who you truly are. It is simple, but it will take everything you have. Everything you are. Risk it all. You will not be disappointed.^{*3}

Following the Revolutionary War, the fledgling nation had no monetary system and was forced to agree to the First Bank Charter, endorsed by Rothschild front man, Alexander Hamilton. When this charter expired, the Brits started the War of 1812 to create new debt that could only be paid with more borrowing, and a Second Bank Charter, supporting the 17th century Fractional Reserve model imposed on Europe, was adopted. Andrew Jackson was vehemently opposed to this banking system and refused to sign the Third Charter. The Euro monarch-monopolists then exploited the congenital defect of America. There were 22 northern states, 13 southern and double the population in the north. England desperately needed quality cotton for sail cloth and clothing, for their shipping monopoly and naval power projection. UK bankers subsidized the slave-plantation system and balanced their payments with manufactured goods. Northern industry and shipping began to compete with this monopoly, and the bankers then subsidized their textile and hard goods market. The north responded with import taxes on manufactured goods and non-US shipping, then added insult to injury by adding export taxes to subsidize New England textile mills. Exploiting this economic fault line precipitated the Civil War, actively funded by Brit bankers and paid for by delivered cotton, tobacco and accumulated southern Gold and Silver. The ruinous war forced a return to the debt-based Euro bankers, a process completed with the Federal Reserve Act of 1913.

That "history" can obscure these facts is a testament to the perverse, and pervasive false paradigm reality that the internet renaissance is now exposing. End feudalism... free humanity.^{*4}

None are more hopelessly enslaved than those who falsely believe they are free.^{*5}

ABOVE: "TANTRIC MARRIAGE" ARTWORK BY GEORGE ATHERTON, DEPICTS SEEKING BALANCE BETWEEN MALE AND FEMALE DIVISION. *6

Universal ONE

The purport of these writings is to illumine the road leading to eternal life by knowledge of the journey through illusion and back again to reality, taken by man in his repeated adventures in time, space and motion.

In order to illumine the way it is first necessary to trace the simulations, reflections and illusions of the apparently many substances, forms and things back to their base in the reality of the One thing.

In attempting to do so it has been possible in this one volume to touch the very fundamentals but lightly in order to correct existing misconcepts.

Even though later volumes will consider the very many effects of motion in great detail, the basic principle of the one cause of the many effects will not be enlarged upon.

It cannot be enlarged upon.

This brief concluding chapter is written to draw from all that has heretofore been written the one lesson that all that man calls "the created universe" is but an illusion of the forms of ideas thought out by Mind.

Ideas, and their expression in form have no existences whatsoever. They are unreal. They are but images conjured up by the image making faculty of Mind in the ecstasy of thinking.

Their appearance of existence is due solely to motion and limited to the effects of motion.

Increase motion-in-opposition and every effect of the illusion intensifies to its limitation in the simulation in non-motion-in-opposition of the universal white light of Mind.

Decrease motion-in-opposition and every effect of the illusion nebulizes and eventually disappears into the white light of non-motion-in-inertia.

Every idea is constantly changing.

Every effect of motion is constantly changing.

Changing things can have no existence.

On the contrary, all that man calls the undependable unreality of the unseen universe, is in fact the only reality.

Mind is the only real thing in the universe and Mind is all that is.

Mind is the only substance in the universe. There is no other substance.

Thinking Mind is the only living thing in the universe. The thinking of Mind is the life principle of the One substance.

Thinking Mind evolves ideas and registers them in form through motion.

Man's physical universe of solids of matter is an aggregation of the forms of ideas thought out by Mind and held in suspense for a time.

If these premises are well founded one can more intelligently answer the supreme question "What is God?"

If there is but One substance, One Being, One Mind, One force, and that One is the only existing reality, must not that One be that which we term God?

If all that which we know as form is but the changing illusion of the image making faculty of thinking Mind, then God must be formless and unchanging.

If there is but One Mind and man is admittedly Mind, then is not the form of man unreal and the real man formless?

If the real man is formless and the image of man is but an illusion of his thinking, is not that illusion of man self creating?

And is man not also God?

And are not all things also God?

Are not all things the One thing, thinking out the several ideas of the One real thing in the appearance of many unreal things?

Is not that which we call "heaven" but an image of man's thinking.

If the statement herein made that form has no existence, and that nothing in this universe has time, place or position, is in accord with the laws of motion herein formulated then it must follow that man's "heaven" and "hell" must be illusions.

If such places exist they must be somewhere IN the universe. They cannot be extraneous to it.

If they exist within the universe their existence must have dimension.

If they are dimensionable they must be subject to the laws of changing things.

There is no "part" of the universe which enjoys the special privilege of immunity from the laws of gravitation and radiation.

Man's "heaven" and "hell" are but illogical concepts of the outer mind. The inner Mind rejects such unwholesome imaginings.

They are traditions, inherited from an age of superstition, of ignorance of nature's laws, of fear, of belief in an avenging God, and of an attitude of mind which demanded the miraculous as a deific qualification.

Man is self creative as all idea of Mind is self creative.

That which we call "self" is but the changing form of idea thought out by the unchanging formless One.

Individuality, therefore, is non-existent except as it appears to exist in things of changing form.

If individuality is only an effect of more or less sustained motion and ceases with cessation of motion then individuality disappears with form at the passing point of absolute inertia in the cycle of motion.

If individuality and form is an idea only and sustained in the appearance of existence by the electromagnetic force of thinking, then that which man calls God cannot have form nor can the attribute of individuality be attributed to Him.

God must be, can only be, universal.

If God is universal then all else is universal.

If God is omnipresent, omnipotent and omniscient then all the universe is omnipresent, omnipotent and omniscient.

When man learns that God is Mind, that Mind is the One living, pulsing, thinking force, and that HE is that force, then man will have arrived at another stage in his evolution.

When man learns that true thinking is an equilibrium of action and reaction, and that untrue thinking is unequal and opposed action and reaction, and when he further learns that he must suffer the consequences of his unequal actions by paying the penalty through the reaction in accordance with the absolute law from which there is no appeal to God or man, he will then think true.

When man learns that all his thinking is electro-chemically recorded in the heavy master-tones which constitute a record of the evolving idea of his self creating soul, and when he finds that a badly opposed record will keep him centuries behind more equally opposed ones, he will then have a thought as to the kind of a soul he is creating.

When man learns that this universe of solid things is but a reflection of the ideas of those things, and that he is but a simulation of the idea of himself being thought out in eternity by himself, then he will know the ecstasy of inner thinking.

Age and "death" are but sequences alternating with youth and life.

These two opposing effects of motion are born together but each travels a different direction along the wave of life. They pass each other at maturity where generation of one sequential life ends and its degeneration begins, only to meet again at the inertial plane of eternal life where degeneration ends and regeneration begins in another change of preponderance for another journey through time, space and motion.

There is no "death."

There is no darkness.

There is only life in this universe of light.

God is life.

God is light.

God is all that is.

Just so long as man looks for the God-force outside of nature and outside of himself, just so long as he bows in fear to the personal deity of his early inheritance, he will be the slave of his own imaginings.

To know that the universal force is Mind, and that man and all else that is is Mind, is to inspire man with the ecstasy of inner thinking.

The God-force speaks to inspired man of inner thinking in the universal language of light which all may understand when they but desire to understand.

Few there have been but countless numbers there will be who will know the light of inner thinking.

Gautama, the Buddha, knew it faintly as Mohammed later knew it. Abraham dimly visioned it.

Jacob knew the light less vaguely. The symbol of the Shekinah was his ecstatic visioning.

Moses knew the ecstasy of inner thinking in greater clarity.

Abraham lived again in Jacob, and in Moses, and again in David.

David and the prophets of his primitive day knew the light more clearly still and left a symbol of the seven lights so that others to come might know that they knew tonal laws of evolving and devolving things.

David lived again in Jesus. Jesus, the Nazarene, knew the universal language of light in all its fullness.

He knew the ecstasy of inner thinking as no man has ever known it.

He knew the structure of the atom as no one before or since has known it.

Jesus knew the universality of all things, the One-ness of all things. He gave that knowledge to the then dull witted, brutal, lustful, loveless world in His much needed message of brotherly love. He lived again in John, and Paul, and Plotinus, and all those messengers who knew the light of universal thinking.

In Jesus' day man was not ready for the fullness of His mighty teachings.

Man was still new. He was still in the ferment of his intellectual brewing, still searching for the avenging god of tradition to whom he could appeal for preferential rulings.

Jesus gave to man the One great message of all time. He taught the universality of all things in the white light of the universal One of impartial love from Whose rulings there is no appeal. But only a few could faintly understand.

Today the world is ready and eagerly awaits the completion of His message.

When Jesus said: "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now," he referred to His complete knowledge of the universal force.

When he further promised, as recorded in the 16th Chapter of John, that the Spirit of truth will again come to "guide you into all truth" and "he will show you things to come," He prophesied the completion from time to time of His unfinished message as evolving man is able to "bear" (comprehend) that message.

The illumination of the immaculate light was complete in Jesus.

Those messengers of the light who will complete His message to man will comprehend the fullness of His anointing in the light from His words: "All things that the Father bath are mine: therefore said I, that he shall take of mine, and shall skew it unto you."

Jesus gave to man sufficient unto his day and wisely withheld that which should be for another day.

That which is herein translated from the light and that which is yet to come, will be for the day of man now dawning.

All who desire to know the light of universal thinking can know it when they can but comprehend effects of cause sufficiently well to recollect from within their inner Minds the light of cause.

When that day comes to man he will then know that:

Everything that is must be of everything else that is. Nothing can be of itself alone.

There can be no two of anything in the universe, two substances, two Minds or two beings.

All things are universal.

Rationalism

Germanistani govt trafficks kids Anonymous (ID: ihd1lHrt) 08/25/17(Fri)17:51:57 No.139028100

You all think germany is fucked up? You dont even KNOW.

>burger
>live in germany for a year >wife and I enroll kid in fancy german school thats supposed to be super prestigious >decide we dont wanna live in germany anymore >school: "haha, fuck you. You need OUR permission for your kid to leave, and we say no, so guess yer stuck paying tuition" >fuck that. Take son to muricuh anyways
>2 weeks later recieve phonecall from jugenamt (german child protective services) >they are charging me and my wife with kidnapping our own son >turns out enrolling a kid in school automatically grants partial custody making the school the legal equivalent of a parent in germany >look into it more >german schools and the jugenamt recieve €8,000 a month per child they remove from parental custody >they are actually famous for stealing foreign children, refusing parental contact, and even prohibiting parents to speak to thier children in thier native language >german families have sucessfully sought political asylum in the US because germany's child laws violate the hague convention >german govt can take anyones kids away for almost any reason native or foreign and foreign kids enrolling in german schools are rolling the dice on being kidnapped by jugenamt then raised in foster care, and never seeing thier parents again

German govt doesnt have any legal sway over my kid in the USA but basically if I ever go to any EU country I or my wife will be arrested as kidnappers for simply deciding to move back to the USA with our son.

Bottom line: dont ever take your kids to germany. The jugenamt might try to steal them and farm them for welfare checks. Its basically legalised child trafficking. ^{*8}

There is a technocratic rationalism that seeks to remake human society—and human consciousness—in its own image. It's seduction within its own thinking makes it easily infiltrated and subverted by autocratic dictates, such that it unwittingly serves the political agenda—at least until such time as it is utterly compromised by its 'master', in which it shifts to maintain the form of its apparent service—but in subservience to a hidden investment in guilt and fear. When their usefulness is outlived, they will not be retained.

Marijuana has not been the drug of choice for the mindcontrol merchants because it CAN be a portal in questioning and seeing for ONESELF, past the deceptions of the social construct. But very few have the discipline to integrate such perspective—and indeed the wisdom to recognize one already has a perfectly functioning 'drug factory' in the body-mind itself.

But in one way or another the shambles of the attempt to 'control' life is always revisioning itself as if NOW it has learned key facts and can NOW achieve what eluded it before. ^{*9}

Ideology

Ideologies are ideals that have been created by the emotional interpretation of ideas; they are a plane of consciousness removed from the original idea, hence subject to gross distortions. They are all temporary expressions and will eventually slip by the wayside... *¹⁰

Wizard of Oz

Just as you can read between the gory lines in the newspaper on any day and discover clues issued by the ‘Powers That Be’ – if you look hard enough – as to what is actually going on, such notice can also be found in lighter faire, like the movies. Such a movie was THE WIZARD OF OZ - an allegory for the new state of affairs in America in the 1930's following the stock market crash and factual bankruptcy of the US government immediately thereafter.

The setting was Kansas; heartland of America, and geographical center of the USA. In comes the twister, the tornado, i.e., whirling confusion – the stock market crash, theft of America’s gold, US bankruptcy, the Great Depression – and whisk Dorothy and Toto up into a new, artificial dimension somewhere above the solid ground of Kansas. When they finally land in Oz, Dorothy comments to her little companion: “Toto, I have a feeling we’re not in Kansas anymore.”

That’s right. After the bankruptcy, Kansas was no longer just “plain old Kansas” – it was now “KS” artificial corporate venue of the bankrupt United States, i.e., the “Federal Zone,” newly established “federal property,” and Dorothy and Toto were “in this state” (see definition for “this state.”)

In the 1930's the all-capital letters corporation sole, straw man, newly created artificial aspect of the former American sovereigns, had no brain – and Americans were too confused and distracted by all the commotion to figure out that they even had a straw man. The Scarecrow identified his straw man persona for Dorothy:

“Some people without brains do an awful lot of talking. Of course, I’m not bright about doing things.”

And in his classic song, “If I Only had a Brain” the Scarecrow/Straw Man succinctly sings:

“I’d unravel every riddle, For every ‘individiddle’ (individual), in trouble or in pain.”

Translation: Once one discovers that his straw man exists, all political and legal mysteries, complexities, and confusions are resolved – and once one takes title to his straw man, he will no longer be in trouble legally or be damaged legally.

The Tin (TIN = Taxpayer Identification Number) Man was a hollow man of metal – a “vessel” or “vehicle”, newly created commercial code words for the corporation sole straw man. One of the definitions of “tin” in Webster’s is “worthless; counterfeit.” Just like the Straw Man had no brain, this Tin Man vessel had no heart. Both were “artificial persons”. The Tin Man also represented the mechanical and heartless aspect of commerce and commercial law. Just like they say in the Mafia: “Nothing personal, it’s just business.” The heartless Tin Man also carried an ax, traditional symbol for God – i.e., modern commercial law—in most earlier dominant civilizations, including fascist states. The “Ace”, etymologically related to “ax” in a deck of cards, representing God, is the only one above the King. One of the "Axis" Powers of World War II, Italy, was a fascist state. The symbol for fascism is the "fasces," a bundle of wooden rods containing an ax with the blade projecting. The fasces may be found on the reverse of the American Mercury-head Dime (the Roman deity Mercury was the God of Commerce), and on the wall behind, and on each side of, the Speakers podium in the US Senate. At the base of the Seal of the US Senate are two crossed fasces.

The Lion, "king of beasts" i.e., king of the goyim – [a] denigration in itself – representing the once-fearless American People, had lost his courage. After your first round with the UCC-constituted IRS "defending" your straw man/vessel/vehicle/all-capital letters name/artificial person, you probably lost some of your courage too. You didn't know it, but the IRS deals with you strictly under the laws of commerce. Just like the Tin Man, commerce is heartless.

To find the Wizard you had to "follow the yellow brick road," i.e., follow the trail of America's stolen gold and you will find the thief who stole it. In the beginning of the movie the Wizard was represented by the traveling professor/mystic whom Dorothy encountered when she ran away with Toto. His macabre shingle touted knowledge of "The Crowned Heads of Europe, Past, Present, and Future." Before the bankers stole America, they had long since dethroned the Christian monarchies of Europe and looted their kingdoms. With a human skull peering down from its painted perch on his wagon behind him, the good professor lectured Dorothy of Osiris and Egypt.

When Dorothy Gale and crew emerged from the forest and arrived in Emerald City, the city of green (the new "fiat money," or money by decree, Federal Reserve Notes), they were serenaded by the Munchkins on the glory of the Wizard's creation:

"You're out of the woods, you're out of the dark, you're out of the night, Step into the sun, step into the light, the most glorious place on the Earth!"

The foregoing jingle abounds with Illuminist-Luciferian symbols and metaphors, e.g., darkness and light.

The Wicked Witch of the West made her home in a round, medieval watchtower, ancient symbol of the Knights Templar of Freemasonry, who are given to practice witchcraft and who are also credited as the originators of modern banking, circa 1099 A.D. The Wicked Witch of the West was also dressed in black, the color symbolizing the planet Saturn, sacred icon of the Knights Templar, and the color of choice of judges and priests for their robes. Who was the Wicked Witch of the West? Remember, in the first part of the film her counterpart was "Miss Gulch," who alleged that Dorothy's dog, Toto, had bitten her. She came to the farm with an "Order from the Sheriff" demanding that they surrender Toto to her custody. Aunt Em answered Miss Gulch's allegations that Toto had bitten her: "He's really gentle. With gentle people, that is."

Could "gentle" be a metaphor for "Gentile"? When Dorothy refused to surrender Toto, Miss Gulch threatened:

"If you don't give me that dog I'll bring a damned suit that'll take you're whole farm!"

Today, 70% of all attorneys in the world reside in the West – America, to be exact – and 95% of all law suits in the world are filed under US jurisdiction. The Wicked Witch of the West and Miss Gulch, my friends, represent judges and attorney; i.e., the American legal system (including the attorney-run US Congress), executioner and primary henchman for transferring all wealth in America – everything – from the people to the banks and the government. Miss Gulch wanted to take Toto. What does the word "toto" mean in "attorney language," i.e. Latin? "EVERYTHING"

Dorothy and the gang fell for the Wizard's illusion in the beginning, but soon wised up and discovered the Wizard for what he was: a confidence man. When asked about helping the Scarecrow/Straw man, among some other babblings about "getting a brain" and "universities" etc., the Wizard also cited "the land of E Pluribus Unum," which is Latin for "One out of many," i.e., converting the many into one = New World Order, or Novus Ordo Seclorum. He also proudly revealed/confessed that was:

"Born and bred in the heart of the Western Wilderness, an old Kansas man myself!"

The bankers did pretty well in Europe, but as the Wizard pointed out, they made a killing in the "Western wilderness" – America – with the theft of American gold, labor, and property from the – quoting John D. Rockefeller – "grateful and responsive rural folk" who populated the country at that time.

When Dorothy asked Glenda, the Good Witch of the North, (Santa Claus, Christianity) for help in getting back to Kansas, Glenda replied,

"You don't need to be helped. You've always had the power to go back to Kansas."

Translation: you've always had the right and power to reclaim your sovereignty, you just forgot. The actual act of reclaiming your sovereignty – remedy – a simple UCC-1 form to the Secretary of State, can be completed from scratch in a few hours time.

America and Americans have intimate first hand knowledge of the heartless mechanics of the laws of commerce, religiously applied by the unregistered foreign agents of the IRS. The IRS, collection agency for the private Federal Reserve Bank, was constituted under the UCC in 1954 and has been operating strictly in that realm ever since. (The UCC was formerly adopted as law in every State by 1963.)

Everything worked out for Dorothy, i.e., the American people, in the end and she "made it home." Meaning: there is remedy in law. It is there – it was just encoded and disguised and camouflaged. Fortunately, the code has been cracked, and we're home free, just like Dorothy. Why continue as a slave, to be further conned by the confidence men? Like Dorothy said, "There's no place like home" – and there isn't! There is nothing like sovereignty for a sovereign! We have commercial remedy in the Redemption process. Will you continue to sit back and take in the Wizard's light show, or will you wise up like Dorothy and "look behind the scenes?"

Note: in the movie, Dorothy's shoes were ruby slippers, in the book written by Frank Baum, her slippers were silver. It has been said that the movie slippers were ruby, because if they would have been silver, the scheme may have been figured out. ^{*11}

Progressive Woody Wilson "won" the presidency with the near fatal assassination attempt against progressive Teddy Roosevelt and progressive Taft, with only 39% of the vote. He immediately signed the traitorous Feral Reserve Act... Woody needed MORE power so he signed the 1917 Espionage Act and began jailing hundreds of newspaper owners, editors and reporters... Major General Smedley Butler, USMC was approached to be the US version of Hitler/Mussolini/Stalin in what was known as the "Bankers Plot", but turned and tried to expose the demonic warlords, see "War Is A Racket". The rest is history, but what you have been indoctrinated with is fiction. ^{*12}

Woodrow Wilson: "I am a most unhappy man; unwittingly I have ruined my country..." ^{*13}

Self-Esteem

Lefties suffer from "social reference anxiety" because they have low self-esteem. This means, that instead of being grateful for all they have (a happiness creator), they compare themselves to those that have more. That is a proven strategy to make them unhappy. They want to make everyone poor, so everyone is equally unhappy, and has limited opportunities. ^{*14}

Skepticism of God

True skepticism does not carry an undertone of anger, ridicule, and derision. It is even-tempered, clear-minded, and full of equanimity, satisfied with showing what's illogical or incorrect in the argument it critiques.

A true skeptic does not use emotionally charged language in an effort to portray the person whose argument he's critiquing as a stupid fool.

A true skeptic has no attachment to proving that she is smarter than and superior to the person whose argument she is critiquing, but rather is content to have her argument win the day purely on the strength of its elegant reasoning.

A true skeptic is willing to consider the possibility that there is some merit, however small, in the argument of the person he's critiquing. He is not afraid that acknowledging this merit will undermine the absolute truth he purports to possess.

A true skeptic is not consumed with the certainty that she is always right. In other words, she resists the temptation to become a fundamentalist.

A true skeptic has a respect for the fact that many questions don't have final answers. She recognizes how much about the world is mysterious.

A true skeptic is skeptical of his own skepticism.

A true skeptic is as likely to be a woman as a man. (97 percent of the pseudo-skeptics are men.)

A true skeptic shows humility, in the spirit that Carl Sagan demonstrated when he said this: "An atheist is someone who is certain that God does not exist, someone who has compelling evidence against the existence of God. I know of no such compelling evidence.

"Because God can be relegated to remote times and places and to ultimate causes, we would have to know a great deal more about the universe than we do now to be sure that no God exists.

"To be certain of the existence of God and to be certain of the nonexistence of God seem to me to be the confident extremes in a subject so riddled with doubt and uncertainty as to inspire very little confidence indeed.

"A wide range of intermediate positions seems admissible... Considering the enormous emotional energies with which the subject is invested, a questing, courageous, and open mind is, I think, the essential tool for narrowing the range of our collective ignorance on the subject of the existence of God." ^{*15}

Anger

Anger and outrage are a consequence of having an expectation violated. Normally, an unmet expectation is just a disappointment. If that disappointment becomes a threat to survival, then you get angry and if becomes a threat to the "larger picture," you become outraged. In the old days, discoveries similar to what is now going on would have triggered everything from a good, old fashioned "necktie party" (a hanging), to a lynch mob, to a revolution. But now, we have laws against all of that, so the people that need to be lynched can use massive amounts of force to keep the deception—and associated anger and outrage—up as high as it can go.

And when people are angry, they aren't thinking straight—and become predictable and controllable.

Sports did vent a lot of this anger in the past, which has now converted over to very violent films and video games. It is all about venting the anger of the population from all the deceit that is being dumped on them into an outlet. Should that outlet ever collapse... well... there is often a return to the "old ways." ^{*16}

Our constitution was forged in the crucible of political failure, first a rejection of monarchy, then the somewhat utopian fantasy of libertarianism. The Articles of Confederation left the nation, if it could even be called a nation, weak and vulnerable to endless internal bickering and external attack. The framers recognized the weakness of selfishness and crafted a masterpiece that encouraged unity by protecting individual rights while inspiring political altruism. Our constitution was recognition of the necessity of unity, or collective effort, but which prevented despots from harnessing the power of collective effort and subordinating it to the will of the few. They wrote a document that was the antithesis to collectivism..

The left sells the wonders of utopian collectivism with government cheese and endless helpings of lies, but what it is selling isn't egalitarian or collective in nature, unless one's definition of "collective" has something to do with amassing valuable things – in this case, human beings – with the assumption of ownership.

Even before Marx stole the idea, people had observed the power of collective effort and saw the opportunity to turn it into an ideology...an "ism," but he expedited the creation of a ruthless ism. Harnessing collective effort became the objective. But with the harnessing came the problems. The power of a collective isn't measured by horsepower, but people power. Individual people become cogs of a great engine. The more cogs, the more power. Now collective effort needed a supercharger. That supercharger is coercion. Coercion was required to negate individual rights, forcing individuals to participate in things they didn't want to do and had no talent for. The world was on its way to profaning one of the most essential aspects of human endeavor: collective cooperation.

Utopian collectivists don't share power or wealth. They horde what they don't destroy. If they have enough, they don't care how much suffering it took to get it. They are no longer fascinated by the results of human cooperation but by the raw power it gives them. The "good" of the collective is strictly measured by the power and wealth acquired. No decision is made based upon altruism. All objectives are exclusively made based on unrestrained, unprincipled greed. Human lives become the fuel for the engine of collectivism.

In the light of that darkness, one has to feel immensely greatful to have lived in America, where despite constant erosion of individual rights, we have lived without the yoke of abject tyranny. Thank God for freedom from evil. But now we see that freedom slipping at an increasing rate and we face tough choices. We will have to make sacrifices to turn the tide. Freedom requires altruism. It requires courage and sacrifice. May we rise to the occasion, whatever the cost. ^{*17}

Just when liberals thought it was safe to start identifying themselves as such, an acclaimed, veteran psychiatrist is making the case that the ideology motivating them is actually a mental disorder.

"Based on strikingly irrational beliefs and emotions, modern liberals relentlessly undermine the most important principles on which our freedoms were founded," says Dr. Lyle Rossiter, author of the book, "The Liberal Mind: The Psychological Causes of Political Madness." "Like spoiled, angry children, they rebel against the normal responsibilities of adulthood and demand that a parental government meet their needs from cradle to grave."

While political activists on the other side of the spectrum have made similar observations, Rossiter boasts professional credentials and a life virtually free of activism and links to "the vast right-wing conspiracy."

For more than 35 years he has diagnosed and treated more than 1,500 patients as a board-certified clinical psychiatrist and examined more than 2,700 civil and criminal cases as a board-certified forensic psychiatrist. He received his medical and psychiatric training at the University of Chicago.

Rossiter says the kind of liberalism being displayed by both Barack Obama and his Democratic primary opponent Hillary Clinton can only be understood as a psychological disorder.

"A social scientist who understands human nature will not dismiss the vital roles of free choice, voluntary cooperation and moral integrity – as liberals do," he says. "A political leader who understands human nature will not ignore individual differences in talent, drive, personal appeal and work ethic, and then try to impose economic and social equality on the population – as liberals do. And a legislator who understands human nature will not create an environment of rules which over-regulates and over-taxes the nation's citizens, corrupts their character and reduces them to wards of the state – as liberals do."

Dr. Rossiter says the liberal agenda preys on weakness and feelings of inferiority in the population by:

- creating and reinforcing perceptions of victimization;
- satisfying infantile claims to entitlement, indulgence and compensation;
- augmenting primitive feelings of envy;
- rejecting the sovereignty of the individual, subordinating him to the will of the government.

"The roots of liberalism – and its associated madness – can be clearly identified by understanding how children develop from infancy to adulthood and how distorted development produces the irrational beliefs of the liberal mind," he says. "When the modern liberal mind whines about imaginary victims, rages against imaginary villains and seeks above all else to run the lives of persons competent to run their own lives, the neurosis of the liberal mind becomes painfully obvious." *¹⁸

Liberals are not capable of being skeptical in an objective sense, rather liberal skepticism instead is based on how they feel. The rational and objective functions of the liberal mind are willfully "turned off" to indulge in emotion and fantasy. Liberals substitute rational thought with emotion and base everything in life on how they feel instead of what is truth. Liberals are ruled by passions, not the will.

Emotion and imagination are the only open doors to the demonic, it's how demons are able to directly influence and control a soul. Demons cannot influence ones will, nothing or no one can. Liberals surrender their will for feelings.*¹⁹

Black Hole

I cited a study by the late Milton Friedman entitled "Inputs and Outputs in Medical Care," published by the Hoover Institution some twenty years ago. In it the Nobel laureate economist showed that, historically, as government became more and more involved in health care by taking over hospitals and funding Medicare and Medicaid, inputs – in terms of money spent – skyrocketed while "output" in terms of patients served declined. He spoke of something called "Gammon's Law," named after a British physician named Max Gammon, who noticed that with healthcare socialism in England, increased "inputs" in the form of massive amounts of money spent always seemed to disappear "as though through a black hole" with little or nothing to show for it in terms of health care. ^{*20}

These 11 States now have More People on Welfare than they do Employed!

Last month, the Senate Budget Committee reports that in fiscal year 2012, between food stamps, housing support, child care, Medicaid and other benefits, the average U.S. Household below the poverty line received $168.00 a day in government support. What's the problem with that much support? Well, the median household income in America is just over $50,000, which averages out to $137.13 a day. To put it another way, being on welfare now pays the equivalent of $30.00 an hour for a 40-hour week, while the average job pays $20.00 an hour.

Furthermore: There are actually two messages here. The first is very interesting, but the second is absolutely astounding - and explains a lot. A recent "Investor's Business Daily" article provided very interesting statistics from a survey by the United Nations International Health Organization.

Percentage of men and women who survived a cancer five years after diagnosis:

U.S. 65%

England 46%

Canada 42%

Percentage of patients diagnosed with diabetes who received treatment within six months:

U.S. 93%

England 15%

Canada 43%

Percentage of seniors needing hip replacement who received it within six months:

U.S. 90%

England 15%

Canada 43%

Percentage referred to a medical specialist who see one within one month:

U.S. 77%

England 40%

Canada 43%

Number of MRI scanners (a prime diagnostic tool) per million people:

U.S. 71

England 14

Canada 18

Percentage of seniors (65+), with low income, who say they are in "excellent health":

U.S. 12%

England 2%

Canada 6%

And now for the last statistic: National Health Insurance?

U.S. NO

England YES

Canada YES

Check this last set of statistics!!

The percentage of each past president's cabinet who had worked in the private business sector prior to their appointment to the cabinet. You know what the private business sector is; a real-life business, not a government job.

Here are the percentages:

T. Roosevelt..... 38%

Taft..... 40%

Wilson 52%

Harding..... 49%

Coolidge..... 48%

Hoover..... 42%

F. Roosevelt..... 50%

Truman..... 50%

Eisenhower..... 57%

Kennedy..... 30%

Johnson..... 47%

Nixon..... 53%

Ford..... 42%

Carter..... 32%

Reagan..... 56%

GH Bush..... 51%

Clinton 39%

GW Bush..... 55%

Obama..... 8%

This helps to explain the incompetence of this administration: only 8% of them have ever worked in private business! That's right! Only eight percent—the least, by far, of the last 19 presidents! And these people are trying to tell our big corporations how to run their business?

How can the president of a major nation and society, the one with the most successful economic system in world history, stand and talk about business when he's never worked for one? Or about jobs when he has never really had one? And when it's the same for 92% of his senior staff and closest advisers? They've spent most of their time in academia, government and/or non-profit jobs or as "community organizers." They should have been in an employment line. Pass this on because we'll NEVER see these facts in the mainstream media. ^{*21}

Right

1. I believe that I have won the greatest lottery of all time. I am alive. I walk the Earth. I live in America. Above all things, I am grateful.
2. I believe that I am entitled to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Nothing more. I also understand that "happiness" and the "pursuit of happiness" are not the same thing.
3. I believe there is no such thing as a "bad job." I believe that all jobs are opportunities, and it's up to me to make the best of them.
4. I do not "follow my passion." I bring it with me. I believe that any job can be done with passion and enthusiasm.
5. I deplore debt, and do all I can to avoid it. I would rather live in a tent and eat beans than borrow money to pay for a lifestyle I can't afford.
6. I believe that my safety is my responsibility. I understand that being in "compliance" does not necessarily mean I'm out of danger.
7. I believe the best way to distinguish myself at work is to show up early, stay late, and cheerfully volunteer for every crappy task there is.
8. I believe the most annoying sounds in the world are whining and complaining. I will never make them. If I am unhappy in my work, I will either find a new job, or find a way to be happy.
9. I believe that my education is my responsibility, and absolutely critical to my success. I am resolved to learn as much as I can from whatever source is available to me. I will never stop learning, and understand that library cards are free.
10. I believe that I am a product of my choices – not my circumstances. I will never blame anyone for my shortcomings or the challenges I face. And I will never accept the credit for something I didn't do.
11. I understand the world is not fair, and I'm OK with that. I do not resent the success of others.
12. I believe that all people are created equal. I also believe that all people make choices. Some choose to be lazy. Some choose to sleep in. I choose to work my butt off. ^{*22}

America was founded as a constitutional republic, not a democracy. The word "democracy" is translated from a Greek word meaning 'mob rule.' The Constitution is supposed to restrain the tendency toward mob rule and the tyranny of the majority but that is what you will end up with when you allow it to be eroded and ignored by corrupt politicians and judicial activists. The ancient Greeks tried democracy long before modern western nations did and the system eventually collapsed due to the same kind of political corruption, manipulation and division that we are witnessing in this country today, resulting in rule by an oligarchy. This is the direction America is headed as well. In other parts of the world dictatorships hold sham elections. Don't think that it can't happen here! ^{*23}

The Sun blasts us with about 174 petawatts of energy per day... which will almost ALL be wasted regardless of what we do. The planet Earth which is 99.99% MAGMA heated by nuclear decay will radiate roughly 44 terawatts of heat into the atmosphere per day... which will also almost all be wasted regardless of what we do and finally gravitational tidal forces between the Earth, Sun and Moon radiate roughly 3 terawatts of energy per day. To better put this in perspective, imagine that we live on a paper thin layer of insulation (the Earth's crust) that shields us from being broiled in an 18inch deep pot of 6000 degree hot magma under a paper thin atmosphere that shields us from being broiled by 174 petawatts of solar radiation. Without the Earth's thick, cloudy, polluted atmosphere to protect us, we wouldn't last a day exposed to ordinary solar activity. ^{*24}

Implosion

A genuine psychopath can be best thought of as the shadow that is cast by an invisible demon, if one wants to go down the allegorical route. Even so, before you call someone a 'psychopath' it's always a really good idea to check that you are not just dealing with a regular asshole. Then, following this, try to determine if it is you that might be the asshole. In all seriousness, these are important distinctions.

If you have been damaged by an encounter with a psychopath—either through bullying at work, or in a vicious relationship—you'll be far too traumatised/numb/confused to be seeking revenge. *26

See any similarities?

This is from sources on the web, and is based on Robert Hare's psychopathy checklist.

1. Look for glib and superficial charm. A psychopath will also put on what professionals refer to as a 'mask of sanity' that is likable and pleasant. It is a thin veneer.
2. Look for a grandiose self perception. Psychopaths will often believe they are smarter or more powerful than they actually are.
3. Watch for a constant need for stimulation. Stillness, quiet and reflection are not things embraced by psychopaths. They need constant entertainment and activity.
4. Determine if there is pathological lying. A psychopath will tell all sorts of lies; little white lies as well as huge stories intended to mislead. Psychopaths are gifted or dull, high functioning or low performing like other people. An untalented psychopath may harm a few; a highly talented psychopath may lay waste to nations. The difference between the psychopath and others lies in their organic lack of conscience and empathy for others. The sociopath is trained to lack empathy and conscience. The psychopath is a natural.
5. Evaluate the level of manipulation. All psychopaths are identified as cunning and able to get people to do things they might not normally do. They can use guilt, force and other methods to manipulate.
6. Look for any feelings of guilt. An absence of any guilt or remorse is a sign of psychopathy. They will often blame the victim.
7. Consider the level of emotional response a person has. Psychopaths demonstrate shallow emotional reactions to deaths, injuries, trauma or other events that would otherwise cause a deeper response. Other people are satisfaction suppliers, nothing more.
8. Look for a lack of empathy. Psychopaths are callous and have no way of relating to others in non-exploitative ways. They may find a temporary kinship with other psychopaths and sociopaths that is strictly utilitarian and goal-oriented.
9. Psychopaths are often parasitic. They live off other people, emotionally, physically, and financially. Their modus operandi is domination and control. They will claim to be maligned or misunderstood to gain your sympathy.
10. Look for obsessive risk taking and lack of self-control. The Hare Checklist includes three behavior indicators; poor behavior control, sexual promiscuity, and behavioral problems.
11. Psychopaths have unrealistic goals or none at all for the long term. Either there are no goals at all, or they are unattainable and based on the exaggerated sense of one's own accomplishments and abilities.
12. Psychopaths will often be shockingly impulsive or irresponsible. Their shamelessness knows no bounds. You will ask, what were they thinking? And the answer was, they weren't because they did not care.
13. A psychopath will not genuinely accept personal responsibility. A psychopath will never admit to being wrong or owning up to mistakes and errors in judgment, except as part of a manipulative ploy. They will despise and denigrate their victims once they are done with them. If they have any regret it is that their source of satisfaction supply has ended and they must seek another.
14. Psychopaths lack long term personal relationships. If there have been many short term marriages, broken friendships, purely transactional relationships, the chances the person is a psychopath increase. Watch especially how they treat other people in weaker positions and even animals.
15. Psychopaths are often versatile in their criminality. Psychopaths are able to get away with a lot, and while they might sometimes get caught, the ability to be flexible and adaptable when committing crimes is indicative. ^{*27}

Born in your tiny prison cell
A million times smaller than you are
One single drop and you're risen up
Afraid of the dark

You crack up through the pavement,
In super, super slow-motion
Though your back is gently breaking
You reach for the light

We can see everything
We can hear everything

Weakness is not your weakness

You are what you grow into
You're not what you were *²⁸

TV Damage

1. ...If an actor is wearing a cross, he or she is the villain or a sicko about 90% of the time
2. ...If an actor is a minority the chances of being a noble or misunderstood victim are about 90%
3. ...If an actor is a non-minority male his chances of being a criminal (despite crime stats) are about 90%
4. ...If an actor is a single female her chances of being a noble misunderstood abused saint are about 90%
5. ...If an actor portrays a homosexual his/her chances of being anything but wrong, criminal or sicko are about 90%
6. ...If an actor portrays a member of a clergy the chances of being at least wrong and biased are about 90%
7. ...If an actor is/was happily married the male chance of being a dufus or worse is about 90%
8. ...If there is a family (intact or not) the chances of child disrespect and profanity are about 90%
9. ...If the actor is an immoral teen the chances of framing that as "not their bad" is about 90%
10. ...If the plot involves a moslem the chances of he/she being shamed or wrong is about 10%
11. ...If adultery is not in the plot then fornication will be about 90% of the time (as expected behavior of course)
12. ...If its a cartoonish comedy the married non-minority husband can barely tie his shoes about 90% of the time
13. ...If the plot involves conservatives, an intact family, prayer or strong parental morality (a spine) those will eventually be trashed about 90% of the time.
14. ...The vast majority of under 25 boys appear very girlish (unless the baddy) and the women lead police charges...
15. ...If a viewer looks for "the least likely in the real world" they will find it about 90% of the time
16. ...If a viewer thinks just a tad they realize Hollyweird culture rot is peddled as if its some higher desired norm.
17. ...If the TV of 1960 and the TV of 2014 were side-by-side we know 100% of the time which prefers secular fantasy plus profanity and which can be viewed for decades by all ages. *²⁹

Fundamental Changes

This is an extremely powerful influence, for it represents powerful internal forces for change colliding with powerful resistance from the external world. You are trying to escape the routine, dull and ordinary aspects of your life. You try to find new things that will make your life more exciting and stimulating. But with every effort of this kind, circumstances, duties and obligations seem to hold you back and keep you stuck in an oppressive situation.

You may get to a point where the pressure is unbearable, and then you will make a sudden break for freedom. You may suddenly leave a relationship, an oppressive job or your place of residence, without warning anyone.

On the other hand, it may be possible to create a balance that enables you to sustain a great deal of tension over a long period of time and accomplish a great many changes in a highly structured way. Tasks of considerable difficulty are often accomplished under this influence, and people make Herculean efforts that would otherwise be impossible for them. Serious study and long-range projects requiring great concentration and effort can be undertaken.

Even though this may seem more productive, it really depends upon your situation. Very often a sudden break with what feels like an oppressive situation will clear the air and allow you to make a new and better beginning. On the other hand, it can cost you more than you are willing to pay. But the patient, hard-working manifestation of this energy may create severe mental and physical tensions, even to the point of physical illness. You have to decide what you can handle realistically and determine for yourself the proper course of action. At this time in your life you must make changes at the most fundamental levels. If you do not, in approximately fourteen years the consequences of not making these changes will become very obvious, and you will be confronted with the same issues again under more difficult circumstances.^{*30}

Fair weather

This influence provides a great opportunity for taking a good look at certain sore points in your past. We all suffer from various incurable wounds, most of which were inflicted early in life and are so painful because they have no meaning. A typical example of this would be a child trying to act as go-between during a heated argument between its parents. The child wants to negotiate, arbitrate, comfort or pacify even when the situation is hopeless. How quickly the good intentions, and the love of a child for its parents, are countered with hurtful words or worse, when actually the child has nothing to do with it! Feelings of inferiority, particularly with regard to one's own body and sexuality, can often be traced back to early experiences of, mostly unintended, rejection, dismissal or injury.

Such wounds do not heal, even with time. Instead they start hurting again, given certain "weather conditions" or influences. If this occurs, subconsciously we will withdraw into ourselves in interpersonal situations, or be oversensitive and react in a hurt manner without apparent reason. At worst we ourselves become particularly hurtful, without actually wanting to, perhaps without even being aware of it.

However, if the weather is fair, as it is during this time, you have the opportunity to bring these painful things to light. This involves not only a personal conversation with your partner, a therapist, astrologer or other adviser whom you trust, but also great bravery and ruthless honesty. Probing each painful experience in this way will not reduce the pain and senselessness of your wound, but you can be freer in your behavior, your close relationships, and in your relation with your body—and prevent yourself from hurting others.^{*30}

Discover Your Self

What is it that is conscious, and knows that it is conscious?

(Think on the question.)

Did you come into your body to do some special thing, or did you come to learn about yourself and about the world?

A special thing... Not sure precisely what.

Who are you?

(The dot represents this answer from a book: "I am conscious." That's all you need to know, for now.)

What are you?

An orb of energy "being" inside a human.

How did you get here?

Willed it.

Where did you come from?

Used to think: Orion (dragon mother). Now: Timelessness.

What do you most desire to be?

Beyond all that is known.

What's your play (as in work you consider play)?

Producing films, everything else is work. (This type of play is no longer possible for J in this lifetime.)

Whether occupation is drudgery or fun largely depends on one's mental attitude or point of view concerning it... To be ashamed of any honest and useful work is a discredit to one's work, for which that one should be ashamed. All useful work is honorable and is made honorable by the worker who respects his work for what it is. The dislike of work leads to ignoble work, such as immorality or crime, and the effort to avoid work causes one to try to get something for nothing. The unnoticed subtleties of making oneself believe that one can get something for nothing interfere with, or prevent one from doing, useful or honest work. The belief that one can get something for nothing is a beginning of dishonesty. Trying to get something for nothing leads to deceit, speculation, gambling, the defrauding of others, and to crime. The law of compensation is that one cannot get something without giving or losing or suffering! That, in some way, soon or late, one must pay for what he gets or what he takes. "Something for nothing" is a hoax, a deception, a pretense. There is no such thing as something for nothing. To get what you want, work for it. One of the worst delusions of human life will be dispelled by learning that something cannot be had for nothing. One who has learned that is on an honest basis of living. ^{*31}

Grateful

I'm grateful for...

My good health, spending time with my family while healing from childhood trauma and outcome.

Having healthy food to eat, as in a proper meal once a day, and occasional treats such as dessert.

Access to a car, to drive when I need to go somewhere, otherwise happy to now spend time alone.

My extended family in [cities], who have helped rebalance the missing elements of my upbringing.

To be close to nature, something that was missing before, such as having wild turkeys roam in the yard, lizards, deers and rabbits passing by to visit the shrub forest behind the house, birds of all kinds chirping a song every morning, and other welcome visitors too. Watching the sun rising.

To still being true to myself, despite losing almost 60% of my former spirit when the outer half of me crumbled on being destroyed by the false assumptions of former competitors. I'm better off without this lost past, but it means learning to live a whole new life, absent of my former skills set.

I'm grateful my sanity is still intact. And fears of losing it—during the transition from a material to a spiritual focus of understanding the universe—proved unfounded, in faith I reached for the light.

I'm grateful for all of the wisdom gained through my experiences living many lives on this world.

I'm grateful for all, this and more...

Life Mission Statement

To find the origin of God.

God Asks

To: Call him God, or "All that is," or "The source of all that is" (if referred to as source).

Do NOT: Call him Jesus (his son), "The universe," or "Whatever is out there."

If I had a Million Dollars...

My family would patiently listen to every word I have to say.

But I don't...

So, they tend to discount any worth in my spiritual experience when I do choose to speak up.

“Lost” Paradise

I “loved” [remote beach in Asia], where first discovered my own little personal utopian paradise... And living happy alone, content, removed from the modern world to an accessible beautiful place.

The location itself wasn’t the greatest, if measured by tourist services standards, but at the time, felt it was perfect. The soft white sand, beautiful setting with only jungle hillsides surrounding the beach, and rocky cliffs isolating the cove which channeled the ocean towards a secluded, and not entirely obvious, idealized tropical threshold, that would attract only a peripheral backpackers...

Its inaccessibility particularly welcoming, reducing anyone to arriving by boat, on a sometimes dangerous journey of conflicting waters beyond the bends around steep hillsides. And wet season, at times causing the sea to appear ferocious in its intentions to pound this beach with endless waves, but breaking far away and layering over one another until churning into a chaos of foam, somehow without threatening the peaceful, calm serenity of being one’s conscious part of it all.

It was already becoming “crowded” the first time I visited, having been tipped off to its location by a fellow traveler on my path, just like in the movie “The Beach.” It wasn’t meant to be found by those looking to find modern preconceived expectations, rather those willing to go a step further.

There were a couple of dozen bungalows, spread out across a few family run “resorts” along the beach front. Resort perhaps being an ambitious term, rather more accurately a common, large hut for the family to share, with a somewhat sheltered guest dining area, and a few huts littered behind or around it, with usually a single shared squat (toilet) and outdoor hose for a shower.

There might be electricity for a few hours, usually at night, for music and a light. Services a boat ride away. Cooks having to be careful handling food they served, especially protein, which had to remain fresh. Otherwise, meals consisted of local ingredients, fresh fruits like bananas. Everything tasted better than anywhere else, in this tropical location with an unidentifiable, magical quality.

That magic wasn’t from tourists, however, many whom had ugly personalities from spiritual void. All but a few—an Israeli “general” and his model wife, and entire Israeli army unit that showed up to hangout for a day, a few multinational wanderers, and a young, naive American student group.

I imagined staying here forever... In a bubble, pretending to be happy. But I wouldn’t have been. Not for the place—but a contradiction in my perception of what paradise represented to me then:

The ultimate escape fantasy, a perfect getaway beach on a remote island, inhabited by locals who also lived on this beach and prepared delicious food for a modest cost, enabling me to enjoy every day sitting under palm trees in sunshine, nourishing my self with gentle pleasures, free of all guilt.

Living in primitive, simple accommodations. Huts mostly shaped with bamboo, elevated far above ground, with a simple roof, maybe attached rainwater “shower.” On porches several soft triangular pyramid cushions, made to sit and lounge on all day, ideally to be used for meditation—if one did.

Seeing pictures am nostalgic to go back and reconnect with its energy. But wouldn’t be the same. At the time, I desired to fulfill externalizing a dream. Now, no longer compete with God inside me.

It’s time for God’s paradise—this served a purpose of lifting my depression long ago—moving on. But if it’s His will for me to return, or find a more suitable alternative, that’s where you’ll find me.

During the Transition

DEAR UNIVERSE,

I NEED ANSWERS. I DON'T UNDERSTAND. I CHOOSE FOR YOU TO ANSWER ME NOW.

WHO'S HIDING WHAT? WHO'S NOT TELLING ME THE WHOLE STORY? WHAT AM I MISSING HERE? WHAT'S NOT RIGHT WITH THIS PICTURE? PLEASE FIND A WAY TO EXPLAIN THIS TO ME!

I JUST DON'T GET IT. CONSCIOUS OR NOT, IT SHOULDN'T MATTER.

I FEEL I'M MISSING OUT, ON LIFE, ROMANCE, MONEY, OPPORTUNITY... AND BECAUSE SOMETHING DOESN'T MAKE SENSE TO ME?

PLEASE UNDERSTAND THIS, I NEED WHAT YOU DON'T BELIEVE I NEED, TO FEEL SECURE, TO MOVE ON, TO EXPLORE, TO GROW... YOUR RESTRICTIONS ARE NOT HELPING ME! THESE MAY WORK FOR PEOPLE WHO GREW UP WITH NOTHING, BUT I LEARNED A DIFFERENT MANNER, HOW TO MAKE THE MOST OF THINGS WHEN YOU'RE SECURE WITH THESE. YOU'VE TAKEN THAT AWAY FROM NOW TO 'TEACH ME A STUPID LESSON FROM YOUR OLD WAYS OF BEING AND THINKING'. ONE DAY YOU'LL REALIZE YOUR MISTAKE AND IT WILL BE TOO LATE, IT FEELS THIS MAY ALREADY BE THE CASE.

THE MORE I DON'T SEE A WAY FORWARD THAT WORKS FOR ME, AND NOT ONE THAT YOU'RE TRYING TO FORCE ME INTO, THE MORE I FEEL ANXIOUS, REPRESSED, STUCK, AND THE LESS I ACCOMPLISH. THIS IS THE OPPOSITE TO WHAT YOU BELIEVE 'SHOULD' HAPPEN AS THAT'S HOW MAYBE MOST 'NORMAL' PEOPLE FUNCTION, BUT I AM NOT YOUR NORMAL AVERAGE FUNCTION! PLEASE LEARN THIS QUICKLY AND STOP FUCKING WITH ME!

ALL YOU HAVE TO DO, AS THE GERMANS WOULD SAY, IS 'IM ENTGEGEN KOMMEN', IOW, I'VE APPROACHED YOU, SO IT'S YOUR TURN TO APPROACH ME, TAKE A STEP FORWARD, AND REVEAL YOUR SELF AND WISDOM DIRECTLY, NOT BY SURPRISING ME AS YOU TEND TO DO... BE DIRECT!

I KNOW YOU HAVE THE POWER TO CHANGE EVERYTHING YOU CHOOSE, SO PLEASE HELP AND SUPPORT ME, RATHER THAN CONTINUE 'TESTING' AND PLAYING GAMES WITH ME, I'M SERIOUSLY GETTING TIRED OF YOU, ESPECIALLY WHEN YOU SEEMINGLY HOLD 'ALL THE (SPIRITUAL) POWER' AND I NONE.

THAT'S ABUSING YOUR POWER. GIVE A LITTLE AND GET A LITTLE. THE MORE YOU TAKE AND INTEND TO PLAY WITH ME, THE LESS I WILL CONTINUE RESPONDING TO YOU, UNTIL THERE IS NOTHING LEFT TO CARE ABOUT, INCLUDING YOU, ME, AND WHETHER I CHOOSE TO STAY ALIVE HERE OR NOT.

MAKE AN EFFORT, AND STOP PRETENDING TO HIDE TO PROTECT YOUR POWER. THAT'S A SIGN OF WEAKNESS, NOT STRENGTH.

I'M GRATEFUL FOR YOU CONTINUED WISDOM, SUPPORT, AND GUIDANCE, AND ASK THAT WE WORK TOGETHER, RATHER THAN MY FOLLOWING YOUR ORDERS ONLY. FOR THIS DOESN'T WORK FOR ME ANYMORE, I NEED TO LIVE, TO PARTICIPATE, TO HAVE MONEY TO BURN IN THIS MATERIAL WORLD, OR THERE'S LITTLE POINT AT ALL IN CONTINUING ON... BLAH BLAH BLAH :)

A Happy Place

...we are finishing out the Sun's dissemination of "a volcanic eruption" and the potential for people, places, and things to suddenly "erupt" comes with it. It's very easy for things to burn hot, burn quickly, and burn out. So the wisdom is to pace ourselves and to step back and think about things before reacting. Having a light-hearted attitude will help. That's really all we need to know about today.

But something much grander is happening beneath the heavy layers. The universe asks us to make a "wish list." The field of consciousness is as ripe as it gets to implant a vision. So when we hold a vision of the world as a happy and freely expressed place, we make it so.

The world as happy and free is the future. But it is also now, though still somewhat buried under sand or dust or water, or however you see it. This world is rising. Wouldn't we want to be part of that instead of part of the parts that are falling? Why be on the losing team when the losing team lacks integrity? No fun...

Today, let's step out of the path of any volcanic eruptions and choose instead to make some magic with our minds. Envision a beautiful world over the next 100 hours and see how that changes your own experience.

Perception—belief—is everything right now. ^{*32}

Sun Squares Saturn

Why is the world so unfair? Why are there so many ridiculous rules? Isn't life difficult enough without all these hoops to jump through and pointless rituals to observe? Who says that we all have to act in a particular way? And why is there never enough of anything to go round? These are all questions that you often find yourself asking. You also often wonder whether you have come to the wrong planet by mistake. It is as if you are a cricket player in a world of footballers. You can't really understand the game that everyone is trying to play or, even if you can understand it, you can't see why it's such a big deal! Just think how much better it would be if they would all stop chasing around the field, trying to score a goal and stand quietly to attention, waiting for the ball to hit the bat. Indeed, come to think of it, where is the bat? Why doesn't anyone have one? What kind of a world is this? The funny thing is, even if you could magically wave a magic wand (or perhaps a magic bat) and fix it so that everyone started to play cricket instead of soccer, you might not feel any more comfortable. You'd be pleased at first, but then you'd decide that you were missing the high-energy and that maybe all those fielders are wasting their time just hanging around. Perhaps they should be encouraged to kick a ball about between themselves.

All I'm trying to do here is to point out the way in which you have difficulty with the rules and regulations of day to day life. You are forever seeing ways in which they probably ought to be changed and that puts you into a difficult relationship with the folk who want to uphold the status quo. This astrological alignment is advantageous to a creative person. If you are an artist, your ability to question convention makes you well-placed to set a new standard and break new ground. If you are a designer, an inventor, a pioneer of any kind, you can be glad that you have been born under this awkward alignment of the Sun and Saturn. But what if you are not? What if all you want is to lead a quiet, normal life? The answer is, you can't want that. You are kidding yourself if you think this. You were placed here on this earth so that you could help bring about change, evolution, the awakening of new understanding and the development of better structures and systems. Your whole life long, you can expect a degree of friction between yourself and the folk who think that we are all just here to accept the authority of a higher power. Try to avoid getting into direct conflict with such folk. Try too, to feel less unsettled by your own eccentricities. These are your blessings and they may yet prove to be the reasons why you lead such a fulfilling, if controversial, life. ^{*34}

PTSD

Since the end of the nineteenth century, researchers (including heavyweights such as William James at Harvard) had been seeking methods to rapidly transform the human personality. James studied drugs and "varieties of religious experience" as possible techniques. After World War I, there was substantial study of "shell shock" cases, because it had been noticed that, under certain circumstances, intense combat stress could completely and instantaneously change a soldier's personality. Starting in the 1920s, the Tavistock Clinic of London was the premier location for shell shock research, and the attempt to re-create transformational "shock trauma" outside of the combat environment. Tavistock quickly became Britain's most important covert psychological warfare think tank.

The Josiah Macy Foundation appears to have been a Tavistock research outpost in America since its inception. During World War II, this collaboration became extensive, and included studies on how one causes public panics, and on how to covertly disperse chemical and biological agents. The foundation's wartime publications first popularized in America the work of William Sargant, a British specialist in "shock trauma" who would later be one of the world's premier brainwashers. After the war, the Macy Foundation almost wholly funded the creation of the World Federation for Mental Health (WFMH), an effort headed by Tavistock director John Rawlings Rees, to infiltrate what Rees called "psychiatric shock troops" into every culture in the world. ^{*35}

It's Time

It's time to put yourself first.

A liberal is a person who believes in the right of the individual to function. The Communist does not believe in the right of the individual. They believe only in the right of the collective. The individual is only part of a collective group, and whenever he doesn't move according to the collective, he is ousted from the group. ^{*36}

Our words to guide the current to flow
The Spirit to move the mind to grow
Within ourselves we find the keys
& with the right mirrors unlocking memories
Of Celestial origins & many past lives
Our journeys this time & to what we strive

Beyond the world of individuality
We surpass ourselves into Eternity
As we Unite with our true Divinity
Creation here flows Infinitely ^{*37}

Happiness

Happiness is the inner psychological reward for achievement of externalized goals as a self-reward system, and the error is to think that the source of happiness is due to the 'out there' instead of originating from within. The prototype is the set-up by the process of evolution itself. In that primordial, as well as later life, animal life forms were not self-energizing but depended on external sources of energy that could be found through search and trial and error. Thus, the biological mechanism was set up as need-search-trial and error-god-reward.

In humans, the same pattern persists at consciousness levels below 200. Acquisition is basically animal instinct survival, which depends upon the 'getting' of mate, food, territory, shelter, dominance, and control. Thus, to animal instincts, the source of happiness is programmed as coming from 'out there'. It is therefore 'gettable' and consequently subject to loss. With mating and animal bonding, this extends to mates and group members. Grief can be seen on the animal level in the reactions of wolf packs, elephant herds, and monkey, ape, and gorilla colonies that go through the grieving process.

The externalization of perceived sources of happiness leads to attachments and the emergence of control as a major survival mechanism, along with the desire for status and its symbols of security, and therefore, materialism. ^{*38}

Happiness is the result of what one thinks and does in accord with rightness-and-reason, and the state of desire-and-feeling when they are in balanced union and have found love. ^{*39}

Contrary to common belief, happiness is not a feeling. Those who imagine it is a feeling frequently spend a lifetime searching to achieve happiness, as though it can be captured by pursuit, strategy or effort. All they achieve from this grasping attitude is ultimate disappointment, because happiness is made up of nothing at all. It is a condition of being. It either is or it is not. It cannot be made, achieved or found, as if it were some external thing to be gained by search. It forever eludes those who try to grasp it.

Happiness is wholly unconscious and far beyond the grasp of the mind. It is a total condition, not conscious. For the present, we have transcended our need for personal recognition and are seeking nothing from the world around us. We are in a state of being, not in the anxiety of becoming. Happiness is the condition that ensues when all seeking, grasping or desire for anything outside the immediate situation has stopped. It is the condition that exists when all feeling of poverty, need, insufficiency and comparison has stopped — a condition when desire is absent. It is the mirror surface of a pond when no wind blows. This explains why it disappears the moment we try to grasp it by any effort of wish or will.

Happiness seeks nothing outside itself, pleasure seeks constant rewards and tidbits. Happiness simply is. It has no cause and does not depend on outside props to hold it up. It is a condition when there is no separation between the doer and the doing, when there is a release from self-criticism, self-evaluation, self-consciousness. When the ego is nonexistent to make comparisons or seek approval. The moment an individual reaches out of this unconscious condition and brings conscious thinking, evaluation, planning, desire or ambition back into the situation, the spell is broken. He is plunged back into the hell of endless seeking, the desire for rewards, personal assurances, compensations and securities.

Pleasure is a counterfeit invention of the conscious mind, a spurious substitute for happiness. Just as counterfeit money tends to drive out sound currency, so does the pursuit of pleasure tend to lead us farther away from the condition of letting go that is basic to happiness. Happiness can exist only when effort, pursuit and grasping fade away.

Happiness lies beyond the effort of the human will. It does not respond to wishful thinking. It becomes the living now only when we finally let go our grasp on things and walk on, seeking nothing to add to our stature or carry with us in any way.^{*40}

I really feel for the "young generation" in America today, they have had so much taken from them.

Prayer was taken from them in public schools along with the "pledge of allegiance" and Christmas Carols that mention the name of Jesus Christ.

More of them are growing up missing one parent or both than ever before.

There are no more Junior Achievement Centers in their neighborhoods to help develop a skill for them.

A lot of the jobs their parents once did are either "outsourced" to third world countries or "illegally insourced" to immigrants or foreigners on temporary work visas.

I know some very great people of this "young generation" and I can't even imagine the level of greatness they would have achieved if they only had some of the advantages that their parents once had.^{*41}

Perspective

During the 3-1/2 years of World War 2 that started with the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor in December 1941 and ended with the Surrender of Germany and Japan in 1945, the U.S. Produced 22 aircraft carriers, 8 battleships, 48 cruisers, 349 destroyers, 420 destroyer escorts, 203 submarines, 34 million tons of merchant ships, 100,000 fighter aircraft, 98,000 bombers, 24,000 transport aircraft, 58,000 training aircraft, 93,000 tanks, 257,000 artillery pieces, 105,000 mortars, 3,000,000 machine guns, and 2,500,000 military trucks. We put 16.1 million men in uniform in the various armed services, invaded Africa, invaded Sicily and Italy, won the battle for the Atlantic, planned and executed D-Day, marched across the Pacific and Europe, developed the atomic bomb and ultimately conquered Japan and Germany. During the almost exact amount of time, the Obama administration couldn't build a functioning web site. *⁴²

I correspond regularly with people in Europe on medical topics. When the medical bureaucrats find out that a person's expectation for QALYs (quality-adjusted life-years) are just not what they used to be, the care they are offered goes downhill very fast until they are shuffled off to VERY inexpensive end-of-life programs - these days even suicide programs. But, since their whole country is subjected to the same scam, and heavily propagandized, almost none of them ever realize that the 'free' medical care they get is 'free' because they are only kept alive while it is cheap to do. WHOEVER is paying the bills, if it isn't you or your true loved ones, prefers to save money over saving your life unless it is YOU who is making the decision on when and what to pay. Most American know that and scrutinize insurance contracts carefully, but people are easily led to believe that the government is some angelic institution that 'really cares' and has bottomless reserves of money that fall from the sky. *⁴³

... "small-souled bugman" implies that the person has been cut off from their cultural roots, and totally subsumed into consumerist neoliberal hive. they are totally lack any sort of sympathy for their ancestors folkways, higher spirituality, or passion. if they do engage in activities that are somewhat human, they still are heavily tinged by global capitalism. if they are a sportsfan, they will participate heavily in fantasy sports(which is obsessed with statistics, 'scientific' analysis of performance). if they exercise, it will be all cardio, and tracked by fitbit and then uploaded to faceberg. tastes in food, art, music, movies are predetermined by review aggregator sites like yelp, metacritic or rotten tomatoes. political views only appeal to them if they seem 'rational,' and derived from the sort of conventional wisdom, economics influenced worldview seen in works like 'moneyball', nate silver's 538 blog... 'freakonomics.' *⁴⁴

I remember when I was young my mother recited this verse —Steven Connors:

You who have dreams, if you act they will come true.

To turn your dreams to a fact, it's up to you.

If you have the soul and the spirit,

Never fear it, you'll see it thru,

Hearts can inspire, other hearts with their fire,

For the strong obey when a strong man shows them the way.

Thanks for all you do.

Earth to Scale

ABOVE: WHILE THE SUN APPEARS SMALL TO MAN, COMPARED, EARTH WOULD BE SMALL LIKE A PEARL IF THIS BURST WERE AN ARM. *45

While you didn't see it, feel it, or even read about it in the newspapers, Earth was almost knocked back to the Stone Age on July 23, 2012. It wasn't some crazed dictator with his finger on the thermonuclear button or a giant asteroid that came close to wiping out civilization as we know it, though—no, what nearly ended us was a massive solar storm. Almost two years ago to the day, our most bounteous and fantastical celestial body—the Sun—kicked out one of the largest solar flares and coronal mass ejections ever recorded. And it missed Earth by a whisker. "If it had hit, we would still be picking up the pieces," says Daniel Baker, who led the research into the massive solar storm.

A solar storm is a generic term for increased activity in the Sun. In this case, the solar storm of July 2012 consisted of a massive solar flare, followed by a colossal coronal mass ejection (CME). A solar flare is initiated by the sudden release of energy stored in the Sun's corona, causing the Sun's plasma to heat up to tens of millions of degrees, accelerating and kicking out all sorts of radiation, and often creating a solar prominence or filament (eruption). In a large solar storm, the same energy from the corona can also cause a coronal mass ejection—a much slower-moving billion-ton cloud of plasma (electrons and protons).

Suffice it to say, but it's bad news if the energy and plasma from a big solar flare or CME hits the Earth. Much like a man-made electromagnetic pulse (EMP) weapon, the solar energetic particles strike the Earth with such force that it ionizes the atmosphere, creating a vast cloud of energetic electrons that bounce around inside the atmosphere destroying electronics and fusing conductive wires everywhere. It would probably take out a few satellites in Earth orbit, too.

Prior to the July 2012 storm, the largest recorded storm was the Carrington Event of 1859. A massive solar flare and CME struck Earth, destroying much of the Victorian telegraph network in Europe and North America. *45

Divided

According to the philosophy of Tantra, the entire universe is a manifestation of pure consciousness. In manifesting the universe, this pure consciousness seems to become divided into two poles or aspects, neither of which can exist without the other. Each requires the other in order to manifest its total nature.

One aspect, Shiva, is masculine, retains a static quality and remains identified with unmanifested consciousness. Shiva has the power to be but not the power to become or change. The other aspect, Shakti, is feminine, dynamic, energetic and creative. Shakti is the Great Mother of the universe, for it is from her that all form is born.

According to Tantra, the human being is a miniature universe. All that is found in the cosmos can be found within each individual, and the same principles that apply to the universe apply in the case of the individual being.^{*46}

On December 17, 1860 the New York Daily Tribune wrote that if tyranny and despotism justified the Revolution of 1776, then “we do not see why it would not justify the secession of Five Millions of Southerners from the Federal Union in 1861.” The New York Journal of Commerce warned on January 12, 1861, that by opposing secession Northerners would be changing the very nature of their government “from a voluntary one, in which the people are sovereigns, to a despotism where one part of the people are slaves.” This is not entirely correct, however; under a coerced union held together with the threat of Lincolnian “invasion” and “bloodshed,” all the people are slaves to the state, not just “one part” of them.^{*47}

I have gone to a Pentecostal Church all my life, I have witnessed some powerful prayers, people got healed, got baptized with the Holy Spirit... never, have I seen anybody roll on the floor, bang themselves against the wall, or act like an animal!! Ever!! We pray so loud the walls shake, but we are not disorderly. We have visions, healings, and prophecies. I have prayed in tongues since 15 and never has the Holy Spirit tossed me around, made me take my clothes off, much less act like an animal!!^{*48}

A businessman's success depends on his intelligence, his knowledge, his productive ability, his economic judgment—and on the voluntary agreement of all those he deals with: his customers, his suppliers, his employees, his creditors or investors.

A bureaucrat's success depends on his political pull. A businessman cannot force you to buy his product; if he makes a mistake, he suffers the consequences; if he fails, he takes the loss.

A bureaucrat forces you to obey his decisions, whether you agree with him or not—and the more advanced the stage of a country's statism, the wider and more discretionary the powers wielded by a bureaucrat. If he makes a mistake, you suffer the consequences; if he fails, he passes the loss on to you, in the form of heavier taxes.

A businessman cannot force you to work for him or to accept the wages he offers; you are free to seek employment elsewhere and to accept a better offer, if you can find it. (Remember, in this context, that jobs do not exist “in nature,” that they do not grow on trees, that someone has to create the job you need, and that that someone, the businessman, will go out of business if he pays you more than the market permits him to pay you.)

A bureaucrat can force you to work for him, when he achieves the totalitarian power he seeks; he can force you to accept any payment he offers—or none, as witness the forced labor camps in the countries of full statism.^{*49}

The businessman's tool is values; the bureaucrat's tool is fear. ^{*50}

I'll never forget one time on a Disney cruise when my cousin said he wanted nothing for dessert, and they brought out a plate with the word nothing written in chocolate sauce. It was cute, clever, and nice because he didn't have to sit there with no plate in front of him while everyone else ate, and it put a smile on all our faces. ^{*51}

It's becoming ever clearer that the owners of this planet are restructuring their worldwide corporation. The continents have been given specific tasks, and what you're seeing now is the execution of these plans: East Asia will be the low paid work force, the 'production line'. Europe will do the paper work, control the cash flow and do management. The US will be the war apparatus: deliver the soldiers (hence the dumbing down and the failing economy to force young people into the armed service) and the war propaganda (Hollywood, news media). The near East/central Asia, and Africa will provide the raw materials and South and Central America will be their laboratory. Not sure about Australia. ^{*52}

If you are fortunate enough to have escaped Marxist poison or were raised conservative or reason caused you to abandon folly, you come to know by instinct, experience and misery why it has to be opposed and that it can only fail.

Turning utopians or trying to reason with them is akin to the teenage transition leap into know it all belligerent obstinance. Bad things are bound to happen and they do. Casualties and damage and "all this crap" becomes misery's normal.

Hopefully recovery and success follows with more sane leadership, a naturally free market where morality, honor and ethics are rewarded, wisdom accompanies rules of law by law rather than deviant men. And wallah, all of society has the means to prosper.

Evidently, man has to learn things the hard way to realize there are easier ways. Ignoring history and wisdom, leftists will again try to ignore the results and insist again their emotion driven creation for life is better. And there are fanatics who make enemies of men.

Maybe someone will write a book: How Envy Destroyed America-Nothing Better was Found but to Restore It. ^{*53}

Benjamin Franklin once said: "Love your most intense Enemies, for they tell you your Faults". Mohamed said: "kill the most intense of the people in animosity toward the believers [the Jews]". Difference is exactly good and evil, Christ, antiChrist. Male circumcision, female "circumcision" mutilation, fully regulated Communism, free markets, censorship and false history, no fear of any idea. ^{*54}

The Libs, in their arrogance think they can seduce the terrorists with materialism and decadence. So the libs play the role of an addict playing the role of a fawning, addled-headed drug pusher attempting to win over his enemies by getting them addicted too—with the end goal of getting them depending on the Libs for everything.

Problem is, the Muslims have been playing this game for thousands of years, and the libs are rank amateurs compared to them. They, the libs, are the ones being played by them instead. The radicals—and one must give the devil its due—will not become beholden to anyone, regardless how much welfare candy is offered them. They want it all, and the libs will not understand that. ^{*55}

Ontology

Ontology is the philosophical study of the nature of being, becoming, existence, or reality, as well as the basic categories of being and their relations. Traditionally listed as a part of the major branch of philosophy known as metaphysics, ontology often deals with questions concerning what entities exist or may be said to exist and how such entities may be grouped, related within a hierarchy, and subdivided according to similarities and differences. A very simple definition of ontology is that it is the examination of what is meant, in context, by the word 'thing'..

The concept of 'ontological formations' refers to formations of social relations understood as dominant ways of living. Temporal, spatial, corporeal, epistemological and performative relations are taken to be central to understanding a dominant formation. That is, a particular ontological formation is based on how ontological categories of time, space, embodiment, knowing and performing are lived—objectively and subjectively. Different ontological formations include the customary (including the tribal), the traditional, the modern and the postmodern.

Wonder

How I've miss you!

Neither life nor happiness can be achieved by the pursuit of irrational whims. Just as man is free to attempt to survive by any random means, as a parasite, a moocher or a looter, but not free to succeed at it beyond the range of the moment—so he is free to seek his happiness in any irrational fraud, any whim, any delusion, any mindless escape from reality, but not free to succeed at it beyond the range of the moment nor to escape the consequences.

Sometimes paraphrased as "You can ignore reality, but you cannot ignore the consequences of ignoring reality." ^{*58}

Where "business" (illuminati) goes wrong, is they try and manage the outcomes. This goes wrong, and happens especially, when managers try taking control of it. This is especially true in "creative" fields, or when faced with an unfamiliar process, where the conditions which allowed the creative potential to develop and shine, tend to "dry up" upon being placed within a particular context or foreign framework, especially once the magic of life giving expression has already run its course (think of artists from Michael Jackson to Motley Crue who fail when beyond their potential). Equality at birth is creation, equality of result is an artificial progressive manipulation to reach it. ^{*59}

Would you work harder to earn $100 or to avoid losing $100? If research from the Center for Experimental Social Science at New York University is any indication, fear of loss is the winner...

The Economists typically attribute excessive bidding to risk aversion, or the joy of winning. What we found is that the actual cause of overbidding is a fear of losing, a completely new theory from past investigations. ^{*60}

When you first heard about Obama's plan to fundamentally transform America, you probably wondered "into what?"

How to create a social state – The Cloward-Piven Strategy:

There are eight levels of control that must be obtained before you are able to create a social state.

The first is the most important.

1. Healthcare – Control healthcare and you control the people.
2. Poverty – Increase the Poverty level as high as possible, poor people are easier to control and will not fight back if you are providing everything for them to live.
3. Debt – Increase the debt to an unsustainable level. That way you are able to increase taxes, and this will produce more poverty.
4. Gun Control – Remove the ability to defend themselves from the Government. That way you are able to create a police state
5. Welfare – Take control of every aspect of their lives. (Food, Housing, and Income)
6. Education – Take control of what people read and listen to us "take control of what children learn in school."
7. Religion – Remove the belief in the God from the Government and schools.
8. Class Warfare – Divide the people into the wealthy and the poor. This will cause more discontent and it will be easier to take (Tax) the wealthy with the support of the poor. ^{*61}

Peace

"It's counterintuitive, but it's true: More guns lead to less crime." — It is not counterintuitive. Outlaws controlled the wild, wild west until the colt became widely available at a reasonable price allowing everyone to have one. When the general populace began carrying guns, the west became civilized. That's why they call that model colt "The Peacemaker". The gun that won the west. I don't understand why we have to learn this all over again. ^{*62}

Prayer for Serenity

God, grant me the Serenity
to accept the things I cannot change, the Courage to change the things I can,
and the Wisdom to know the difference.

Living one day at a time,
enjoying one moment at a time,
accepting hardship as a pathway to peace, taking this world as it is, not as I would have it.

Trusting that you will make all things right if I surrender to your will,
so that I may be reasonably happy in this life,
and supremely happy with you forever in the next.

AMEN

The Serenity prayer as I understand it:

God, Grant me the Serenity
to accept the people I cannot change, the Courage to change the person I can,
and the Wisdom to know that person is me.

Recovery

The Four of Swords card suggests that my power today lies in recovery. Our mutual losses or experience deserve to be acknowledged or remembered with dignity, honor, and respect even as we regroup to move forward. I am willing to work on forgiveness and letting go of the past in order to find peace. It's time to give it a rest. I am empowered by stillness and my virtue is silence. ^{*64}

In times of change and uncertainty, we naturally take comfort in our enduring connections with friends and family. But when it comes to reinventing ourselves, the people who know us best are the ones most likely to hinder rather than help us. They may wish to be supportive, but they tend to reinforce—or even desperately try to preserve—the old identities we are trying to shed. ^{*65}

America's National Identity: A Judeo-Christian Nation

Just some 50 years ago and earlier, it was a general understanding that America was founded as an exclusively Judeo-Christian nation. The consensus was based on the historic facts that America indeed was founded by Christians and Jews (Christians being a great majority over 95%).

After the first Christian pilgrims came in America on sail ship May Flower in 1620, a small band of Dutch Jews immigrants landed in America in 1654, seeking refuge and religious liberty too. Since the very beginning therefore it was a joined venture.

Later, our Founding Fathers, while being devoted Christians, revered the Old Testaments and the Ten Commandments, which inspired them so much, that they wished to embed Judaic symbols into the state images of the United States...

Before the marxist take over of the nation in the 1960s every textbook of history pointed out that this nation was founded by the immigrants predominantly from Europe and near 100% Christians. It was colonies of the Great Britain, so that English remained their national language. Christianity and Judaism, English language, and citizenry of European origin comprised the foundation of the American national identity.

Since the 1960s however the lefts, some of the rights, anarchists, and militant atheists vehemently deny our national identity as a Judeo-Christian nation. They interpret the secular structure of our government as though mandatory atheism of this nation, referring to the Bolshevik's slogan of "Separation of Church and State" as though it were in our Constitution.

At that both the lefts and the rights are in a strange love affair with Islam: So much so, that they claim as though the word "Religion" in the 1st Amendment stands for each and every religion of the world (just to accommodate Islam, mind you). The truth may be settled very simply. The Founders could mean only the Religion(s) practiced by the colonists and defining the national identity of our Judeo-Christian nation. After all, most nations of the world were mono-religious, and neither of them claimed as though its national identity includes all religions of the world...

We have no government armed with power capable of contending with human passions unbridled by morality and religion. Our constitution was made only for a moral and religious people. It is wholly inadequate to the government of any other. —John Adams, second president of the United States. *⁶⁶

Why atheists can't be real Americans

America was founded on a creedal statement. It can be found in the Declaration of Independence:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness."

Thus, America was founded on the principle that the Creator God endowed men with certain unalienable rights. This statement formed the basis of self-governance in a world ruled by kings and tyrants. It is the principle that set America apart from the rest of the world.

It's important to note that the founders – and most of the 2 million people living in America at the time of the founding – were Christians who believed in the One True God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. They weren't referring to any other god. They rejected Allah. They rejected paganism in all its forms. They rejected atheism.

America was thus founded as a Judeo-Christian nation, tolerant of other views, but with the understanding that only a moral people governing themselves to the best of their ability under God's eternal laws were capable of maintaining the liberty established uniquely under this covenant.

While I know some atheists and agnostics who live in America as productive citizens and don't try to impose their views and their will on others, that's exactly what groups like People for the American Way do.

They seek a fundamental transformation of America away from the principles and the creed that set it apart. Likewise, at the end of the day, anyone who doesn't believe in the Creator God of our founders is, at best, enjoying the blessings established by that national creed without acceptance of it.

There's an old saying: "America: Love it or leave it."

And never before in our history has that adage made more sense.

There are lots of places one can live in this world. If you want to live under Islamic Shariah law, there are plenty of countries to choose from. If you want to live in a secular society, you can take your pick of dozens of nations. If you want to live as a Hindu, India awaits you. If you want to live as a Buddhist, take your pick of Buddhist countries. If you want to live in an officially atheist nation, move to China or Cuba or North Korea.

But if you want to live in the freest nation on earth, understand why it has been that way for 230-plus years. It's because of the principles of self-governance that only work in a society of responsible, moral people accountable to the teachings of the One True Creator God found in the Bible.

The day Christians and Jews are outnumbered in America by non-believers is the day the American Dream dies...

The day before the signing of the Declaration of Independence, John Adams wrote a letter to his wife, Abigail. He said: "The second day of July, 1776, will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America. I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary Festival. It ought to be commemorated, as the Day of Deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward forever."

Thomas Jefferson wrote: "God who gave us life gave us liberty. And can the liberties of a nation be thought secure when we have removed their only firm basis, a conviction in the minds of the people that these liberties are of the Gift of God? That they are not to be violated but with His wrath? Indeed, I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just; that His justice cannot sleep forever; That a revolution of the wheel of fortune, a change of situation, is among possible events; that it may become probable by Supernatural influence! The Almighty has no attribute which can take side with us in that event."

John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence said: "Resistance to tyranny becomes the Christian and social duty of each individual. ... Continue steadfast and, with a proper sense of your dependence on God, nobly defend those rights which heaven gave, and no man ought to take from us."

Another signer, Benjamin Franklin, wrote in 1790: "Here is my Creed. I believe in one God, the Creator of the Universe. That He governs it by His Providence. That He ought to be worshipped. That the most acceptable service we render to him is in doing good to his other children. That the soul of man is immortal, and will be treated with justice in another life respecting its conduct in this. These I take to be the fundamental points in all sound religion, and I regard them as you do in whatever sect I meet with them. As to Jesus of Nazareth, my opinion of whom you particularly desire, I think the system of morals and his religion, as he left them to us, is the best the world ever saw, or is likely to see."

These men had markedly different perspectives on religion.

But they all recognized one thing – man cannot freely govern himself without accountability to God.

Ultimately, the only alternative is government tyranny of one form or another.^{*67}

Dragon

Merlin: What are you afraid of?

Arthur: I don't know.

Merlin: Shall I tell you what's out there?

Arthur: Yes, please.

Merlin: The Dragon. A beast of such power that if you were to see it whole and all complete in a single glance, it would burn you to cinders.

Arthur: Where is it?

Merlin: It is everywhere! It is everything! Its scales glisten in the bark of trees, its roar is heard in the wind! And its forked tongue strikes like... like... [lightning strikes near their feet]

Merlin: Whoa! Like lightning! Yes, that's it.

Arthur: How can I...? What should I...? Must I...?

Merlin: Do nothing. Be still. Sleep. Rest in the arms of the Dragon. Dream.^{*68}

Djinn & Dreams

... expert on the paranormal Rosemary Ellen Guiley discussed her recent research into the Djinn—powerful spiritual entities that have been described throughout history, as well as her long standing work on dreams. She characterized the Djinn as a race of supernatural beings who were here on the Earth before humanity, but lost dominion of the planet and now live in a parallel dimension to ours. They have access to our world, and there are those among them who are rather hostile to humans, though not all of them are negative, she said. "Based on my research of years and years tracking these entities throughout the paranormal realm, they account for a lot of our negative experiences—hauntings, possessions, entity encounters... and ET abductions," she revealed.

According to one ancient Arabian legend, the Djinn originated from the winds—"they were literally primordial wind spirits, often responsible for ill winds that blew in, bringing in disease and bad luck," she detailed. In the Koran, they are explained as preexisting humans created from a substance called smokeless fire, and this may reflect their shapeshifting ability to take on different forms. Interestingly, Guiley concluded after years of studying Shadow People accounts that they are actually Djinn, whom she also believes are connected with alien abduction/hybrid scenarios. Sightings of Shadow People would often precede abductions, she said, sometimes by weeks, months, or years. She also described strange shadow creatures called scuttlers that have been associated with the breakdown of equipment, and health problems. "In writing The Djinn Connection... my purpose here is to bring the Djinn to the attention of the western audience, especially to investigators and researchers... they're not on our radar, and we need to know about them," she stated. ^{*69}

Roots of Evil

One is the idea that "money is the root of all evil" whereas the correct rendering of the original statement is that "the love of money is the root of all evil". Actually the love of money is not the root of all evil, fearful as its fruit may be. Obsession with physical sex causes extreme cruelty, as does jealousy, vanity, revenge, sadism and other negative emotions which may be equally observed in the lives of the rich, the prosperous and the poor.

This teaching has resulted in extreme misery in the lives of thousands of spiritually or mystically inclined people, who have thought or talked themselves out of even a moderate supply to meet their material needs and pay their obligatory bills.

Many places in the Path as we travel bring us up to rough experiences, which are inevitable if we are to mature by action and practice rather than reading. Nonetheless, the neophyte is not doing himself nor anyone else any good by inviting the hardships consequent with a contempt for money...

Nowhere is straight thinking more necessary than in this imaginary contest between materiality and spirituality. It is a very visible fact that there are many thousands of people who prosper in the accumulation of material goods and the amassment of large bank accounts, who show no spiritual awareness whatever.

It is another visible fact that there are many thousands who, in their sincere desire to realize God and live in this world up to their highest spiritual possibilities, are in a constantly wretched financial condition. They are afraid of money, afraid of expressing by word or effort their normal want of it. Yet they desperately long to pay off their debts and live up to their inescapable financial obligations. This is their concept of heaven on earth, and the idea that they are also entitled to (by reason of effort or contribution) to surplus funds, for normal enjoyment of life, seems almost sinful to them.

Growing up to the idea – in many climes and languages – that one “cannot serve God and Mammon”, they are mentally crippled from childhood and ready to swell the ranks of those who become so inept at living that only the life to come holds any hope of normal happiness for them.

These are the people who, faced with a sudden salutary challenge to bravery, initiative, effort or endurance, say lachrymosely “God’s will be done”. This God of Wrath, who rejoices in making his creations suffer, is the pathological product of primitive man’s imagination. It has no place in modern thinking, or the daily life of the modern world. The God of Abundance, who rewards selfishness and gives something for nothing at the chant of a mantram, is also a product of man’s imagination. This can very easily be deduced from meditation on the visible evidence of the invisible laws all around us...

The neophyte on the Path must make friends with money and respect it, since it is the material of his barter of food and shelter for labor, his measure of dependability and self-reliance in readiness to earn and pay for his share of necessary goods.

There is no place or situation where God is not. Therefore the Presence of God is at work in the world of money. Its demands and its pressures are therefore not outside the spiritual life of initiation, but are essential and valuable parts of it.

All men do not travel the same route to the Summit. In some, spiritual growth strips them of all material desires. They live as simply as hermits in the midst of plenty, shedding the burden of material goods so as to better concentrate on the inner life and enlighten their fellows. This is a true and constructive development. It has nothing in common with the poverty of ineptitude, nor that of religious false conditioning...

Ineptitude, through sloth or lack of education to meet the responsibilities of contribution to the common good, is the most common motivator to the worship of the God of Unearned Abundance. Your feet are set on this precarious and disappointing road to negation if you desire such abundance, but fail to meet the price demanded of those who seek a large share of the world’s goods or power. There is a paradox here.

It is true that there are neophytes who appear to lead Enchanted lives. Their needs are met as if by magic: their wishes are fulfilled. Why, then, is it not possible to be like them? It is possible. They are not inept and impractical. They are heavy contributors to the universal store – not only of talent, industry and professionalism in their work, but also of love, sympathy, understanding and goodwill to all men. Their understanding embraces the hidden laws, either consciously through study and practice or intuitively through their rare gifts of the spirit. They are not inept, and they are not selfish.

The selfish know nothing of this enchantment of living. The doors are closed to them.

“The Supreme Path of Altruism is a short-cut
Leading to the realm of the Conquerors-
A track more speedy than that of a racing horse;
The selfish, however, know naught of it.”
